Commission Officials Say Station Operator Can Cut Off Talk.

DENIAL OF IMPROPER LANGUAGE BROADCAST

General's Friends Believe He Will Drop Incident at Philadelphia.

(Associated Press.)

Radio Commission officials said yesterday Howard Miller, Philadelphia Radio Station owner, was within his rights in cutting Maj. Gen. Smedley D. Butler off the air last night for using the word "hell."

The law creating the commission, it was explained, provided "no obscene, vulgar or profane language shall be used in radio communication." Station operators have the right to censor their own programs and are indirectly responsible to the commission for them.

While the commission itself holds no authority in enforcing the law, it can exert considerable influence with the broadcasters by taking into consideration the nature of programs broadcast when renewing station licenses, it was pointed out.

An example of commission action against objectionable language on the air was the case of Station KVEP, in Portland, Oreg. It was taken off the air on the ground that a man, to whom the station had sold time, had used obscene and profane language.

The commission's action was sustained by the courts.

Speech Was Humorous.

Philadelphia, April 26 (A.P.).—Maj. Gen. Smedley D. Butler today found himself in the news again, incident to his use of the word "hell" on the air and the censorship of his speech by a radio station.

The general was taken off the air during a humorous speech before the 312th Field Artillery Association here last night and later went with friends to the broadcasting room of Station WELK, where a protest was entered.

The general's friends protested to Howard Miller, director of the station, because Miller had told the radio audience his station did not permit the use of profane or indecent language. The incident was closed so far as Miller was concerned when the station permitted Judge Harry S. McDevitt, a member of Butler's party, to deny the speaker had used improper language.

Butler Quoted Sergeant's "Hell."

Last night's bit of drama was linked with the latest diplomatic incident involving the general, which became public after Butler had protested remarks attributed to Minister Bellegarde, of Haiti. The diplomat was quoted as saying Fort Riviere was nonexistent, although Gen. Butler had been awarded American and Haitian medals for capturing that Haitian stronghold. The general was telling his audience last night how the event came about.

"A sergeant, a private and I were about to go through a drain hole to enter the fort," said Butler. "I said I did not feel like going in first.

"I looked at the sergeant in a helpless kind of way and then he looked

President Is Soaked As Rain Halts Fete

Celebration of English Colonists' Landing at Cape Henry Ends Abruptly as Downpour Sends Crowds Scurrying to Shelter.

Cape Henry, Va., April 26 (A.P.).—A torrential rain and wind storm today drenched President Hoover and his official party and broke up the 324th anniversary celebration of the landing of the first permanent English colonists.

After an uncomfortable delay in getting back to the ship on which he came from Washington, the President, who took his wetting good-naturedly, was en route to the White House tonight aboard the Department of Commerce boat, Sequoia.

Skies were threatening as President Hoover and Gov. Pollard walked from the special train to the natural amphitheater among the sand dunes. The President cast apprehensive eyes at the lowering clouds and the wind was blowing the fine sand in clouds as the huge crowd rose to sing "America."

The storm broke suddenly as Bishop A. C. Thompson of the Episcopal Diocese of Southern Virginia, began the open prayer. President Hoover, hatless, stood in the rain with bowed head while attendats threw a coat around his shoulders and raised an umbrella. He retreated under a tarpaulin, but the horizontal slant given the rain by the wind made this worse than useless, for the rain poured through the roof and beat into the sides.

The presidential party sought refuge in a railroad station about a quarter of a mile away. Mrs. Hoover was dripping and her blue spring hat was a wreck.

Gov. Pollard joined the party in the station and tea was served. The special train had withdrawn from the station, the crew anticipating that the ceremony would last for an hour.

An effort was made to take the presidential party to Little Creek Inlet, where his boat was waiting, by automobile. The party had been scattered, however, in the sudden scurry for cover and the President found it necessary to wait a considerable period in an automobile until Dr. Vernon Kellogg could be located.

President Hoover and Gov. Pollard laughed over their teacups as they

LABOR CANVASS PREDICTS LIGHT WINE AND BEER

Modification of Dry Law by Next Congress Is Held Possible.

BLAMES PROHIBITION IN WIDE CORRUPTION

Sees Only 17 Senators and 45 House Members as Rum Die-Hards.

Philadelphia, April 26 (A.P.).—Organized labor's national committee for modification of the Volstead act sees legalization of light wines and beer as a possibility in the next Congress.

In a report of a congressional survey released tonight the modification group, which meets in conference here tomorrow, asserted a majority in both houses favored modification.

The report written by Matthew Woll, vice president of the American Federation of Labor, and I. M. Ornburn, president of the Cigarmakers' International Union, states that only 17 members of the Senate and 45 representatives were prohibition "die hards" and that some of them were "listed among the most valued customers of Washington's well-known bootleggers.

Sees Corruption as Result.

Asserting that prohibition had "resulted in the transfer of the corner sale to the home, in the corruption of our youth, apparent corruption of our judiciary and enforcement officers, and the creation of bootleggers, gangsters and racketeers," the report added:

"There are few services which can be rendered in these days of depression which will be more helpful to so great a number as prevailing upon Congress to modify the Volstead act.

"Our survey indicates that victory is in sight if those who have voluntarily enlisted in this case will make their wishes known to the senators and representatives from their States.

"Of the 96 members of the United States Senate 34 are willing to vote for the modification of the Volstead act permitting the lawful manufacture and sale of wholesome beer and light wines.

Positions of Others.

"Fifteen believe that beer is non-intoxicating, but claim that as representatives of their States they are not justified in voting to change the present legislation, as sufficient demands for such changes have not been presented to them from the people of their own States.

"Twelve senators admit that a majority of the people of their States at the present time are producers or consumers of illicit liquors, but claim that the organized church vote is of so much importance that they do not feel it good personal policy to oppose it.

"Ten feel that both the Volstead act and the eighteenth amendment should be repealed and the entire matter left to each State for the people of the State to decide what they want to do. Eight refused to state their views.

"This leaves only seventeen members of the Senate who can be classed as prohibition die-hards.

"Our survey of the House of Representatives shows that there are 144

COUZENS ASKS CATECHISM ON BUSINESS PLAN

Urges That U.S. Chamber Oppose Wage Cuts at Convention.

INSURANCE FOR IDLE FAVORED IN LETTER

Pleads for Consideration of Curtailment of "Orgy" of Installment Sales.

(Associated Press.)

A catechism on what business plans to do to guard against future depressions and unemployment was addressed to the United States Chamber of Commerce yesterday by Senator Couzens, with suggestions for consideration at its forthcoming annual convention at Atlantic City.

Saying he had not yet received a promised invitation to address the meeting, the Michigan Republican, in a letter to William Butterworth, president of the chamber, reiterated the hope the chamber would not advocate wage reductions, but would consider various forms of unemployment insurance, security of workers' income, pooling of reserves to stabilize income of employes, and curtailment of the "orgy" of installment sales.

"Space does not permit me to go into the matter at the same length that I would had I received an invitation to address your convention," he said. "However, I have submitted this in the form of an open letter so all your delegates may have an opportunity of discussing these questions."

Barnes' Statement Mentioned.

Senator Couzens cited a recent statement by Julius Barnes, former persident of the chamber and head of the Hoover business conference committee, suggesting that the $46,000,000 now being paid to 40,000,000 workers be spread over the entire 45,000,000 usually employed. Mr. Barnes now is chairman of the board of directors of the chamber.

"Does this not place the entire burden of unemployment on the wage earners and relieve capital of any expense in taking care of the 5,000,000 unemployed?" the senator asked. Interrogating further:

"Does the chamber visualize that what is causing the failure of business to recover is the instability of the income of those already working?

"Does the chamber realize that this some 40,000,000 of workers, in self-preservation, must conserve every dollar possible in fear of having their incomes reduced or cut off entirely by further unemployment?

"Does the chamber realize that those employed only on part time can not play any part in bringing around the recovery of business?

Wage Scale Stand Asked.

"Will the chamber at its convention please go on record whether or not they believe in a reduction in wages or a possible increase or at least a maintenance of existing wage scales?

"Does the chamber realize that to reduce wages would simply bring around a maladjustment of the distribution of the earnings of capital and labor that existed before the depression?

"How will a reduction in wages in-

Snowden, Still Ill, Will Present Budget

British Taxpayers Eagerly Await Chancellor's Message Today.

London, April 26 (AP)—Pale and even frailer than usual, but still the game chancellor of the exchequer in the Labor government, Philip Snowden will rise almost from a sickbed to the floor of the House of Commons tomorrow afternoon to introduce the British national budget

Serious illness and operation have failed to keep Snowden from opening the budget personally He has insisted on wrestling with its twin demons, a deficit of some $117,500,000 and about $250,000,000 in new revenue which must be found for the national balance sheet of 1931-1932, calling for more than $400,000,000 in expenditures

No event of the year rivals the interest of King George's subjects on problems of government and national finance as does the chancellor's budget day speech, with its closely guarded secrets and last-minute revelations of new taxes or, more rarely, relief from taxation Tonight the humble Englishman who uses tobacco, drinks a daily glass of bitter beer or buys gasoline for his small motor car, as well as he of title and wealth at the other end of the social scale who maintains town and country homes and shooting estates, is wondering whether he will be hit by the new financial edicts which will come from Snowden's thin lips tomorrow

A touch of melodrama will be added to the usual suspense of budget day by the presence in the gallery of doctors and nurses and Mrs Snowden, who have been caring for the chancellor during his weeks of

DOUTHITT GIVES RAMBLING TALE ABOUT BEATING

Probers Learn Little of Importance Regarding Attack on Editor.

INSURANCE AGENTS BLAMED BY VICTIM

Investigators Checking on Undisclosed Leads in Mystery Assault.

Motives for the attack on Harry N. Douthitt, publisher of the Bluecoat, unofficial organ of the Police Department and former prohibition investigator, became clouded with an even heavier coat of mystery yesterday after he made his first semilucid statement to police.

His rambling words, pieced together by acting Capt. Edward Kelly, of the homicide squad, and other detectives, blamed two men, who attempted to interest him in an insurance venture, for his beating with a heavy piece of pipe.

Douthitt told police that a man called him Thursday night and asked if he would be interested in representing a certain insurance firm in a new type of venture. The plan, as outlined in the telephone conversation, was to have policy holders place 10 cetns daily in a small bank for a $1,000 policy.

Douthitt's Aid Sought.

The man suggested that Douthitt represent the firm and inteerst investors in backing it, according to the statement. Douthitt is quoted as telling the man that he did not care to go into the proposition. The man then said he would call in person and talk the matter over.

The man called the next day, Douthitt said, but he again declined to enter the insurance business with him. The promoter then promised to return Saturday night with another representative of the firm and again lay the plans before Douthitt.

Douthitt said that the two men called as agreed, and that he invited them in to his apartment at the Portner, at Fifteenth and U streets, and that he led them back to his large living room.

As they reached the door of this room, Douthitt told police, one of the men produced a length of pipe and aimed a blow at his head. He remembered nothing else until he awoke yesterday in Casualty Hospital, he related.

Unable to Describe Men.

Pressed for details of the appearance of the two "insurance men," Douthitt told police that he could describe neither one of them. He said he did not know their names, and that he had never seen either of them until Friday, when the first agent called upon him.

He could give no reason for the attack, he said.

Acting Capt. Kelly admitted last night that the tale Douthitt mumbled to him in the hospital room did not advance his investigation of the attack very far. He said police were working on other leads, but declined to give any intimation as to what those leads were.

Few clues were found in the apartment where the attack took place. The heavy iron pipe used to beat the Bluecoat editor into unconsciousness was carefully covered in brown wrapping paper, and examination failed to reveal any trace of fingerprints. Fingerprints also were lacking at the apartment, Capt. Kelly said.

Detectives twice attempted to question Douthitt yesterday. Acting Capt. Kelly called at the hospital in the morning, but the man was unable to give any sort of a connected statement at that time. Late in the afternoon he managed to mumble the story of the insurance men and the version of the attack. However, detectives say, some of his statements are far from clear.

Condition Is Still Serious.

Hospital authorities late last night said that Douthitt had gained some ground, but that he was still in a serious condition. Despite the severe beating he received, he is expected to recover, however. He has concussion of the brain, but it has not yet been determined whether he received a fracture of the skull. He is still unable to talk connectedly.

The attack on the editor was discovered about 9:30 o'clock Saturday night. He was found slumped in a chair by L. F. Allwine, manager of

BISHOP CANNON HIT IN REPLY OF GLASS

Senator Defends Authority of Nye Committee in Probing Funds.

(United Press.)

Senator Carter Glass (Democrat), Virginia, yesterday made a hot attack on Bishop James Cannon, jr., his opponent of many years' standing in Virginia politics and in the Methodist Episcopal Church South.

Senator Glass replied publicly to the bishop's challenge of the authority of the Nye investigating committee to ask him what he did with $65,300 entrusted to him for anti-Smith campaigning in 1928. The Virginia senator defended the Senate committee's authority and ridiculed the bishop's recent plea that ill health prevents his appearance to explain his financial transactions.

Senator Glass is a prominent layman in the Southern Methodist Church, and his attack on Bishop Cannon may have some effect on the bishop's selection as chairman of the College of Bishops when that body meets next month. Under the church rule of rotation in accordance with seniority, Bishop Cannon is in line for that post, but it was revealed recently that a petition has been circulated designed to prevent his accession.

Bishop Cannen's recent comment that the resolution under which the Nye committee is proceeding was offerred by a senator (Glass) who supported Alfred E. Smith for the Presidency in 1928, drew from Mr. Glass the following:

"It is quite chacteristic. It will appeal to those simple and emotional souls who appear to derive satisfaction from extenuating this prelate's alleged irregularities. Bishop Cannon may be interested to know that the Republican senator who did ten times more than any other to elect Hoover and defeat Smith thoroughly approved the resolution before it was offered, even going to the extent of expressing his willingness to offer it."

This was a jibe at the bishop's leadership of the anti-Smith Democrats in the South in 1928. Mr. Glass did not name the Republican senator he referred to.

"What has the fact that a supporter of Smith offered the Senate resolution under which the Nye committee is proceeding, or that it would have willingly been offered by the Republican senator who did most to elect Hoover, to do with the question of alleged embezzlement of campaign funds and a gross violation of the

RASKOB'S ACTS HELD PERIL TO HIS PARTY

Methodist Board Declares Excellent 1932 Chances Are Endangered.

(Associated Press.)

Chairman Raskob, of the Democratic national committee, was assailed yesterday by the Methodist Episcopal Board of Temperance as having endangered "the excellent political opportunity" of the Democratic party in the 1932 presidential campaign.

In its weekly clip sheet the board said: "Raskob has administered the affairs of the committee in the sole interest of a minority of the party—a minority which has never hesitated to knife any ticket which it was not permitted to name."

"He has tried to drive from the party," the editorial said, "every man and woman who would not permit him to express its thought, define its policies and change its character. He has preemted the privileges of the Democratic convention.

"He has endangered the places of Democratic representatives and senators from the South and West. He has acted upon the assumption that the electoral votes of the Southern and border States may be used for

Girl Rock-Killing Veiled in Mystery

Rich Farmer's Daughter Is Found Dead After Connecticut Dance.

Hamden, Conn., April 26 (U.P.).—A mysterious murder confronted Connecticut police tonight after the body of Emily Kirk, 21, daughter of a prosperous farmer, was found in a ravine, her head crushed by a 50-pound rock.

A searching party headed by police found the body today 2,000 feet from the place where the girl attended a dance last night given by the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Mix District Volunteer Fire Department. Miss Kirk had attended the dance, at which members of the West Haven Republican Club were guests, and, along with other members of the auxiliary, acted as a waitress.

Dr. George H. Joslin, medical examiner, ordered an autopsy, which probably will be held tomorrow. Police said there were indications Miss Kirk had been attacked.

FRANCIS SCOTT KEY TABLET DEDICATED

Memorial Is Unveiled by the Daughters of 1812 in Cathedral Service.

A memorial tablet to Francis Scott Key, author of the "Star-Spangled Banner," designed by Philip H. Frohman and the gift of the District of Columbia Society of the Daughters of 1812, was unveiled in the south crypt corridor, beneath the nave aisles, in Washington Cathedral at 5 p. m. yesterday. Many delegates here for the annual convention of the National Society, Daughters of 1812, attended.

The service of dedication was conducted by the Right Rev. James E. Freeman, D. D., Bishop of Washington, assisted by the Very Rev. G. C. F. Bratenahl, dean of Washington.

Maj. Francis Scott Key-Smith, of this city, in an address on the history of his illustrious great-grandfather, gave interesting glimpses of his writing of "The Star-Spangled Banner," as preserved not only in history, but in family traditions and records. Maj. Key-Smith said that Francis Scott Key was first and foremost a Christian, devoted to his church and had served for many years as vestryman of St. John's Church, Georgetown, and also in the same capacity for Old Trinity Church at Third and C streets northwest. He also was a delegate for many years to the general conventions of the Episcopal Church.

Maj. Key-Smith pointed out that Francis Scott Key not only composed "The Star-Spangled Banner," but also wrote the hymns "Before Thee Lord We Bow" and "Lord With Glowing Heart I'd Praise Thee," both of which are in use in the Episcopal Church today.

The tablet was presented to Washington Cathedral by Mrs. Mary Logan Tucker, president of the District of Columbia Society, United States Daughters of 1812, on behalf of that organization.

Bishop Freeman accepted in behalf of the Cathedral Chapter. In his acceptance the bishop declared that what is needed most in the country today and which is its only real security, is a reaffirmation of the faith in God on which this Nation was founded and a return to the Christian ideals of citizenship, exemplified in Francis Scott Key.

"This country was born," Bishop Freeman said, "while the Nation knelt in prayer and its inspiration came from the hearts and minds of men who believed in the sovereignty of God.

"Of such was Francis Scott Key, a

CAR ACCIDENTS KILL MAN, HURT SEVERAL

Triple Collision Near Laurel Fatal to Capital Visitor; Other Accidents.

One man was killed and several persons were injured, four seriously, in automobile accidents in Washington and its environs over the week-end.

Francis Hetzell, 21 years old, was the man killed. Four other persons were injured in a triple collision in which Hetzell's car overturned on the Baltimore boulevard near Laurel, Md.

Mr. Hetzell, who was returning to his home in Bridgeton, N. J., from a visit to Washington, was going toward Baltimore, when a car driven by Gilbert Stanton, of Bladensburg, Md., made a right-hand turn into Bowie road.

Mr. Hetzell applied his brakees and his automobile skidded, struck a rear fender of Stanton's car and then slid across the road and crashed into a Washington-bound automobile driven by Miss Elizabeth Van Dyck, of Pittsfield, Mass.

Autoists pulled Mr. Hetzell from the wreckage, but he had been killed instantly. Mrs. Marion Hetzell, his wife, and Miss Amanda Gala, also of Bridgeton, received lacerations of the face and body.

Miss Van Dyck and Miss Ruth Mills, also of Pittsfield, Mass., a passenger in the Van Dyck car, also were cut by flying glass. All were treated by Dr. Bryan P. Warren, of Laurel. Mrs. Charles Mills, 60 years old, mother of Miss Mills, was uninjured.

Patrolman C. W. Cubbage, of the Maryland State Police, said the accident appeared unavoidable. No one was held.

Three youths were injured, two seriously when the automobile in which they were riding overturned yesterday on the Rockville pike near Bethesda, Md.

Those hurt are Austin Snelling, 18 years old, of Falmouth, Va., possible fracture of the skull, condition serious; Ray Davenport, 17 years old, of 915 Liberty street, Fredericksburg, Va., lacerations of head, condition not serious, and Harold Gallahan, 17 years old, of Falmouth, Va., the driver, several ribs fractured nad a broken left leg, condition serious.

Gallahan was driving north on the Rockville pike, when the car in front of him, driven by John C. Robertson, of 4610 West Virginia avenue, Bethesda, Md., made a turn. Gallahan lost control of his automobile and it overturned. The injured were taken to Georgetown Hospital by Warner E. Pumphrey and members of the Bethesda Fire Department.

Calvin Coolidge Says:

Contemporary opinion is usually too critical and often misdirected. In the perspective of history many of our present imperfections will disappear and the good qualities of our society and Government will be more apparent. Before becoming entirely discouraged and hastily deciding everything has so deteriorated that confidence is no longer warranted, it would be well to read some former opinions. Discouraging conclusions are not new. They have continually been expressed, even by the able and the thoughtful from the foundation of our republic.

As judicially minded a man as Chancellor Kent wrote in 1845:

"I think we have at Washington the meanest mean, malignant, party hacks and tools that ever were doomed to curse a republic."

Yet the country not only survived, but the Government of that day is now conceded to have included some of our most brilliant statesmen.

Sometimes the whole body of the Congress falls into disfavor because of the actions of a few members. The blame lies with the voters who elect undesirable persons. When elected, other members have to work with them.

This republic has a good government. The future undoubtedly will judge this period as a time when the country met its difficulties remarkably well.

2 Men, Determined to Fly To Denmark, Reach City

Hillig, 55, and Hoirlis, 29, Arrive Here to Get Information on 3,100-Mile Hop, Believed to Require 28 Hours.

Voicing determination that they will "fly to Denmark or swim there," Otto Hillig, Liberty, N. Y., photographer, and Holgar Hoirlis, his pilot and an experienced transport pilot, arrived in Washington last night to get the necessary information from the State Department and Government aviation authorities to make their 3,100-mile flight.

They are planning to make the trip about the middle of May, weather conditions permitting, and they will fly a straight course instead of the usual circuitous route followed in transoceanic flights. The plane is a Bellanca, equipped with a 300-horsepower Wilbur Wright motor. It has a 600-gallon gas capacity and carries 20 gallons of oil. It will be the most completely fitted plane yet to leave the United States on an air voyage to another country, Mr. Hillig predicts. The equipment will include every conceivable airplane instrument to safeguard flying. The plane is named the Liberty.

The flight was originally planned last October, the two men revealed

Crime Data Assailed By Wickersham Body

Third Report of Commission to President Hoover Condemns Present System as Inadequate and Abused; Urges Nation-Wide Plan.

(Associated Press.)

The present system of gathering criminal statistics—needed in the building of new anticrime machinery—was condemned yesterday by the Wickersham Commission as inadequate, often nonexistent and sometimes "seriously abused."

In its third report to President Hoover since beginning work nearly two years ago, the commission recommended that a Nation-wide system of gathering crime statistics be evolved "as one of the first steps" in remedying present conditions.

The more than 200-page document, made public at the White House, was signed by all eleven members of the commission. Its content was directed by Dean Roscoe Pound, of Harvard University Law School, and included lengthy studies by two of the commission's experts, both connected with Harvard.

The commission recommended enactment of a uniform State law providing for statistics collections, with eventual administration by the Census Bureau. Until these steps could be taken, it suggested compilation by a single Justice Department bureau instead of several, with the present system to be developed.

It warned against "publishing officially conclusions and interpretations based on partial data" and insisted no further activities as to general criminal statistics should be undertaken "until the ultimate plan is settled."

Assailing particularly the inadequacy of present crime statistics, the report hit also at Government agencies publishing statistics with an eye to their own interests. It also strongly criticised the Justice Department's Bureau of Investigation, which publishes a monthly crime report.

"It takes but little experience of such criminal statistics as we have," the commission said, "in order to convince that a serious abuse exists in compiling them as a basis for requesting appropriations or for justifying the existence of or urging expanded powers and equipment for the agency in question rather than for the purposes which criminal statistics are designed to further.

"The source of difficulty, when the matter is looked into, almost always proves to be desire of the bureau in question to make for itself the most favorable showing possible, and hence the choice of a basis of compilation which furthers that desire instead of one indicated for general purposes."

The commission asserted the Bureau of Investigation made "no suggestion as to any limitations or doubts with respect to the utility or authority of the figures presented."

"It requires no great study of these reports," the commission said, "to perceive a number of weaknesses which should impose a more cautious promulgation of them. The basic reports are made by persons and under conditions which involve varying de-

Birth Control Sanctioned In Report of Church Group

Findings of Presbyterian Commission Decry Bringing Children Into World Without Adequate Provision; Counsels But Two Divorce Grounds.

New York, April 26 (A.P.).—A statement that it is wrong to bring children into the world without adequate provision for them is contained in a report of a special commission on marriage, divorce and remarriage to be presented to the general assembly of the Presbyterian Church at Pittsburgh, May 28 to June 3.

The report, made public today, was signed by all members of the commission.

"Earnest Christian people," says the report, "are asking for the church's guidance on the subject of birth control. This subject demands attention today as never before. Economic conditions and a worthy standard of living make it wrong to bring children into the world without adequate provision for their nurture and proper consideration for the health of the mother.

"The Christian conception of sex clothes the relationship between husband and wife with spiritual significance, sanctifying marriage as a divine institution. Moral control is the basic essential to a worthy experience of a marriage relation."

The report deplored the irrelevance of divorce and condemned "the deliberate steps taken by married people to secure divorce in order to remarry." The commission urged the church reaffirm its position that divorce be sanctioned only in cases of willful desertion or adultery.

"When," said the recommendation, "husband and wife have been divorced on either of the two grounds authorized by the scriptures, the innocent party is justified in remarriage on a Christian basis."

The report stated a survey indicated that cases of divorce are "extremely rare" among people actively connected with a church.

the Portner, a few minutes after the telephone operator, Miss Lillian Murrow, received reports of a struggle in Douthitt's apartment.

When she called him on the telephone to ask what was wrong, Douthitt replied: "I don't know what you are talking about."

Elevator Operator Saw Men.

Elliott R. Smith, colored elevator operator at the apartment house, told police that he carried two men to Douthitt's apartment a few minutes before the attack. He said that he saw them leave by the stairway about 15 minutes later. He was unable to describe them clearly.

Douthitt was a former special investigator of field agents for the Citizens Service Association, an organization of drys who styled themselves volunteer prohibition agents. He was active in the work and brought about the arrest of several bootleggers.

After this venture he published a paper in Arlington County and then became editor of the Blueccat, a publication devoted to the activities of Washington police. A short time ago the publication was repudiated by the Policemen's Association.

members who are ready to vote to modify the Volstead act so as to permit of the legal manufacture and sale of wholesome beer and light wines; that 54 members believe the Volstead act should be modified, permitting the consumption of wholesome beer and light wines only in the homes and each family limited as to the amount that may be purchased each month.

"Thirty-five congressmen admit that the majority of their constituents are producers or consumers of illicit liquors and would be greatly benefited by the modification of the Volstead act. These are fearful that the organized dry influence, while in a minority, is so well organized that its demands can not be openly flouted.

"We found that 55 members, mostly from grain and fruit producing States, are unwilling to vote to modify the laws as their constituents are at the present time manufacturing or producing such liquors as they wish for their own use and the use of their neighbors for but a fraction of what the same liquors cost them prior to the passage of the Volstead act.

Fear Racial Troubles.

"Thirty-four others fear that with the modification of the Volstead act would come racial troubles with the colored element in their districts. Sixty-seven members absolutely refuse to indicate how they feel on the question at this time.

"There are only 43 le-hard members opposed to any change in the law.

"Even those who are opposed to the modification of the Volstead act privately admit that the inability of the Government to enforce the law, to control the bootleggers, the gangsters and the racketeers, to prevent bootleggers from distributing vile liquors to high school boys and girls, and to our colleges has resulted in many of those churches which, of late years, have spent most of their time and effort in opposing the modification of the Volstead act being today very slimly attended and dependent upon the generosity of a limited few for their maintenance and support."

The report which will be submitted to the conference tomorrow said modification of the Volstead act would bring about a big reduction in taxes.

SENATOR IN ATTACK ON BISHOP CANNON

corrupt practices act by Bishop Cannon or anybody else?" Glass asked.

"The Nye committee is not charged with the duty of considering the patrnity of the Senate resolution; but it is empowered to investigate any charge made by responsible persons to the effect that Bishop Cannon or anybody else deliberately violated the Federal corrupt practices act or embezzled campaign funds entrusted to him by diverting them to private uses. That is all there is to it; and nobody who has not been guilty of either one or both of these criminal offenses could possibly think himself in jeopardy."

As to the bishop's challenge of the constitutionality of the Nye committee inquiry, Mr. Glass observed, "constitutional questions, as I think, are decided by the courts and not by persons accused or by committees of investigation."

The bishop's statements as to his health, drew from Mr. Glass the observation that, "the amusing aspect of Bishop Cannon's statement, as it seems to me, is the adeptness of the physician who is said to have advised him that it would endanger his life to spend a brief hour or more in telling the Nye committee the meaning of certain extraordinary bank accounts which, without explanation, might be regarded as incriminating; and at the same time telling him that it would improve his health to travel across the continent making political and religious speeches."

Mr. Glass added, however, "I shall not undertake to say that it would not endanger Bishop Cannon's life to tell the Nye committee what it desires to know about his bank accounts nor will I venture to assert that it would not greatly improve his health should he be excused from this ordeal."

RASKOB'S ACTS HELD PERIL TO DEMOCRATS

the vicious purpose of returning a legalized liquor traffic to the United States without regard to the conscientious convictions of the voters of those States."

The board recalled that at the time the prohibition amendment was successfully submitted to the House the resolution had the support of 144 Democrats and 137 Republicans, while 64 Democrats and 62 Republicans opposed it. "Every subsequent vote on prohibition in this body," it continued, "has shown in similar fashion that the majority of Democrats as well as the majority of Republicans are dry. These test votes are the only reliable indication of party feeling throughout the Nation."

Asserting Mr. Raskob had introduced "the methods of a Tammany boss into national Democratic affairs," the board contended Democratic leaders in the South and West had shown a "comprehension" of facts and that these methods would be effectively challenged.

"There need be no misapprehension," it concluded. "The abuse and persecution to which the Protestant churches have been subjected since 1928 will not deter them from their duty in 1932."

Pollard to Seek Hats For Self and Hoover

Cape Henry, Va., April 26 (A.P.). The Virginia Legislature probably is going shopping for two silk hats.

"I'm going to put two silk toppers in the State budget," Gov. Pollard said after the drenching President Hoover and the governor received here this afternoon in a rainstorm. "One will be presented to the President," he added, "and the other will replace this wreck of mine."

President Hoover was bareheaded when the rain fell, but his hat, held by a member of his party, did not escape the fury of the elements.

chatted about the wetting. Bishop Thomson's robes clung to him like a dress. Lawrence Ritchie, secretary to the President, and military and naval aids were endeavoring to find members of the party and getting wet in doing so. The crowd, eager to get some shelter, swarmed around the tiny station.

The Cape Henry Memorial Commission and local committee appeared much more worried over the behavior of the elements than the official party and the distinguished guests.

In the huge crowd that assembled at the scene was a group of about 100 Girl Scouts. Mrs. Hoover being honorary president of the organization. Asked to accept the far-from-adequate protection of the tarpaulin when the storm broke, they accepted with alactrity. Drenched, however, they formed later at the station and sang in the rain as the official party departed.

The hurried departure of the crowd from the dunes was hampered by the deep sand and there were many upsets in the rush. There was no nearby shelter except the railroad station, and President Hoover and his party retreated over a narrow temporary board walk.

With President Hoover and Mrs. Hoover were Dr. and Mrs. Vernon Kellogg and Dr. R. A. Millikan, of California; Lawrence Ritchie, Capt. Joel Boone, White House physician; the President's naval and military aids, Capt. Russell Train and Col. Campbell Hodges.

Gov. Pollard was accompanied by his daughter, Mrs. Herbert Lee Boatwright, and Mr. Boatwright, of Washington; Miss Violet McDougall, his secretary; Miss Frances Branch Scott and Mrs. J. Taylor Ellyson, of Richmond; Charles Pollard and members of the official staff.

Mrs. Franz Naylor, of Norfolk, speaker of the Assembly of Tidewater Women, was general chairman of the Cape Henry pilgrimage committee.

grees of guaranty of their accuracy and reliability.

"Indeed, the significant fact that cities are beginning to use these reports in order to advertise their freedom from crime as compared with other municipalities suggests at once a difficulty under which the voluntary system of gathering police statistics for national purposes must labor."

At the closing of this chapter the commission added that "it is not only important to provide criminal statistics; it is quite as important to see to it that misleading information is not sent out under official auspices and with the imprimatur of the Government."

at me as if to say, 'oh, hell, I'll go in.'"

At this point the station, situated in the same building in which Butler was talking, cut off the speaker. The fighting marine did not know it but kept on talking. Meanwhile, many telephone calls came in to the station asking for an explanation of the interruption. It was then Mr. Miller said the station did not permit profanity.

Apology Is Broadcast.

Told of the incident later, Butler and friends went to the control room and met Miller, where an apology was broadcast. Today the station director said he had been operating a radio station since 1922 and that he did not permit any profanity, indecent language or improper stories to go out of his station, "nothing that a child in the home should not hear."

Miller said that he considered the word "hell" unfit to go into a home, but that so far as he was concerned, the incident was closed.

ROLLICKING RENO

Reno Gains Foothold On Divorce Industry

Good School and Golf Are Result of Influx of Wealth; Open Gambling Forms Question Yet to Be Settled.

Reno, Nev., April 26.—Reno's divorce mill is, in all probability, something permanent. There is, as an article of this series, "Rollicking Reno," has pointed out, a vast investment in it. The hotel man, the ancient spinster with a bungalow to rent, the servant looking for an Eastern wage scale, the tourist agency and the divorce attorney reap profits from it, equally with the merchant selling Paris gowns or gin and yellow chips.

Likewise, the seekers for decrees have done their bit for Reno.

In Nevada there is just one private school. A former New York housewife and kindergarten teacher set it up some years ago when she came here for a divorce—and then stayed on. Its turnover is large and constant, for its pupils are the children of the divorce colony, and their terms in Reno are short terms. Recently a check-up showed that out of the 43 young boys and girls attending there was only one whose parents had remained together. Nevertheless, it is a good school. That is one permanent improvement the divorce mill gave to Reno.

The golf course is another. Fifteen years ago there was none. An enthusiastic woman golf professional, here for "the cure" established it. She remained for two years and the club prospered, after she had converted local talent from the sports of roping by the indicated hoof or horn or tossing horse-shoes. The divorce mill is responsible for golf in Reno, therefore. Professional men, attorneys, merchants and the rest make up its membership.

Socially, Reno, has benefited by its divorce trade. It's not alone that headlined names appear on Reno's invitation lists and dinner-place cards (this town has never set up barriers against its visitors in trouble). The divorce colony has made it possible for Reno to enjoy such perquisites as night clubs, luxurious and exclusive beyond the dreams of most towns of the size, music and good living.

Financially, and socially, the divorce industry is a well-buttressed fixture here.

But open gambling is another question. It's something of a question whether or not this latest feature, designed to keep the trade in Reno, is due to last. How does it stand today?

Well, so far, it has been no overnight success. There will be three gambling houses open in the town when the summer tourist rush begins—old stores remodeled for the purpose. There are The Willows and the Cal-Nev for the roadhouse and the week-end trade.

But money is not being poured into the infant industry. At a rough estimate, the investment in the business now is probably some $15,000. Operators and promoters have been loth to sink their capital in large plants. Not one of the three gambling houses, for example, has bought the premises on which it operates. They lease.

The pay roll is not large. Dealers make from $10 to $15 for a day's shift. In some games, in some places, there are three shifts. The total spent in wages by the gamblers may run approximately to $2,000 daily, with the McKay-Graham syndicate—owners of the Bank Club—accounting for $1,200 of the aggregate.

Further, the business threatens to become chaotic.

Racketeering Feared.

Now that the State has licensed gambling, subject to additional taxation by the city, the McKay-Graham syndicate will lose its firm monopoly. The industry will be revamped along new lines, unless the city should adopt an ordinance shutting out composition by a high license fee—something that seems unlikely. There is a possibility of cut-throat rivalry. There is a possibility of racketeering in the field, which would be new to peaceful Reno.

Therefore the possible promoters bide their time. They will wait to see how open gambling shapes itself before they sink their money in it. And, if it doesn't shape to suit them, they will stick to their pursuits—as Charles J. Miller, veteran boss gambler, told The Washington Post, he plans to stick to real estate.

Back in provincial 1906, the capital investment in the gambling industry far exceeded that of progressive 1931. Buildings were erected especially for gambling houses then—buildings since destroyed or turned to other, more prosaic uses. One of those mile-long bars of thick mahogany alone would, at today's prices, buy a good slice of Reno's gambling business in this year of grace.

And, over the whole situation there hangs the threat of revocation of the license given to high, wide and handsome play at faro and roulette, keno, panguingui and the rest.

Repeal's Ghost Walks.

Until the State-wide referendum, scheduled for 1932, is past, it is unlikely gambling will become a big-time racket here. It is too likely that the lid will be shut down again, and the investment vitiated.

In fact, experienced and unprejudiced observers predict the gambling law will be repealed if the issue is taken to the people of the State in 1932.

True, Reno's "home folks" who have seen whoopee in the making both before and after the passage of the act, agree with what Mayor Roberts said:

"By passing wide-open laws, we have only stripped the hypocrisy off the existing conditions that obtain in every city in the land."

But then the citizens of Reno have a neat income from the wide-open state of things to help convince them. That is not true of small communities, where there are also votes to cast in referenda.

Reno, Las Vegas, Elko and Ely (where, by the way, "Tex" Rickard's former partner, Ole Elliott, still runs the Northern Hotel, once the best known gambling place in all Nevada) stand to make money from the law. The balance of the State will take in nothing, and consequently has no special interest in the preservation of the "personal liberty" Mayor Roberts stresses in his advocacy of the measure.

Whole Traffic May End.

Only a great rush of trade to the four towns that profit from the law, a rush so great that money trickles out into the country districts of the State, is likely to preserve the open-gambling act.

And, should a State-wide referendum put the ban on gambling, it is possible the kindly attitude of local authorities as displayed by the tolerance of their licensing before the bill was passed might be eliminated.

Which would be sad. But Reno, basking under the hot, desert sun, doesn't worry over-much. Rollicking Reno! Gambling or no gambling, monopoly or no monopoly in the divorce trade, referendum or no referendum, it will be long before her rivals in the field of so-called "liberal laws" catch up with her head start.

CATECHISM ON PLAN URGED BY COUZENS

crease the purchasing power which is so badly needed at this time?"

The chamber further was asked to consider the agreement between the manufacturers and workers in the clothing industry.

"You have undoubtedly available for your consideration several plans adopted by individual corporations," Senator Couzens continued, "where provisions were made by setting up unemployment funds, so that in some cases 90 per cent of the workers were placed on a salary roll with a guarantee of 52 weeks of work a year, and others 48 weeks per year, so in effect when management failed to regularize its production the funds had to be drawn on to pay from 60 to 80 per cent of the workers' wages when unemployed."

He said steel manufacturers, motor car manufacturers, and others might arrange to pool reserves under proper conditions for the purpose of stabilizing the income of their workers.

"It does seem to me," he added, "that this security of income would go a long way to stabilize consumptions."

Senator Couzens quoted Mr. Barnes further to show 45,000,000 persons normally employed received approximately $50,000,000 daily and that the 40,000,000 still employed received $46,000,000, which he suggested be spread over the entire 45,000,000 persons.

Senator Couzens contended that thus, under the Barnes proposal, "there is to be taken from those employed approximately $5,000,000 daily to be distributed in wages for employment of those now unemployed."

This procedure would, he added, place the entire burden of unemployment on the wage earners.

TABLET DEDICATED HONORING MONROE

Ceremony at Fredericksburg Marks Inauguration of Fifth President.

Special to The Washington Post.

Fredericksburg, Va., April 26.—A bronze tablet commemorating James Monroe's inauguration in 1817 was unveiled here this afternoon on the 173d anniversary of the fifth President's birth, accompanied by impressive ceremonies in which leading members of the National Woman's Party, donors of the memorial, took part.

Mrs. Rose Gouverneur Hoes, great granddaughter of the author of the Monroe Doctrine, and her son, Laurance Hoes, accepted the tablet on behalf of the shrine.

The principal address was delivered by Mrs. Harvey W. Wiley, of Washington, chairman of the National Woman's Party, which established headquarters in the old brick Capitol, where the tablet was erected, memorializing Monroe's inauguration. It was at this building, used as the Capitol after the burning by British of the present structure, that Monroe set the precedent for the outdoor inaugural ceremonies.

President Hoover sent a bouquet of pink carnations and a letter expressing regrets that he was unable to attend the ceremony. The letter was read by W. A. Bell, member of the Fredericksburg Common Council. Fredericksburg was represented, in the absence of Mayor Jere M. H. Willis, by Chester B. Goolrick, newspaper editor, who, in a brief address, outlined Monroe's career here as a young lawyer and common councilman. The author of the doctrine bearing his name was born in Westmoreland County, 40 miles from here, near the birthplaces of his predecessors, Washington and Madison.

ARLINGTON BUDGET WILL LIST $768,778

Hearing Set for Wednesday on Tentative Outlay; Poll Taxes Urged.

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

Operations of Arlington County during the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1931, carrying with it a possible increase of 5 cents on the $100 assessed valuation for fire protection, which will be taken care of by a proposed reduction of a like amount for roads and making no increase in the tax rate over last year, will require expenditures of $768,778.26. This is according to a tentative budget which has been prepared by the county board of supervisors. A public hearing will be held at the courthouse Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock prior to its adoption, the board announces.

Principal expenditures will be for schools and roads. The former will need $308,176.98, according to the estimates, and $258,176.98 of this sum is figured as the county's share, the remaining $50,000 coming from the State. Roads will require $221,557.26, of which the budget estimates the county's share to be $161557.26, with the remaining $60,000 coming from bus and gasoline taxes.

The budget carries the following items: Total estimated compensation paid from county fund to board of supervisors, county clerk, sheriff, commissioner of revenue, Commonwealth's attorney, treasurer, including deputies of such officers and all other expense of administration, $63,000; judiciary, including salaries, circuit court judge, judge of the juvenile and domestic relations court, trial justice, jury commissioners, jurors, coroner and county judge, $61,000; public buildings, including janitors' salaries, repairs, heat, light, insurance and incidental expenses, $9,000; election, $2,500; support of the poor and mothers' fund, $5,000; health department, $12,500; scavenger department, $20,000; education, including salary of county superintendent, teachers, interest on a school debt, curtailment of debt and other administrative expenses, from local levy, $258,176.98, from State, $50,000, making a total of $308,176.98; roads, including salary of directing engineer, road foreman, field force, clerical force and office supplies, road lights and all other incidental and administrative expenses from local levy, $161,557.26; from gasoline and bus taxes, $60,000, making a total of $221,557.26.

Other expenses: Fire protection, $24,000; fire hydrants, $12,000, making a total of $36,000.

Contingent fund, including all other expenses not set out in the tentative budget, including appropriations to be hereafter made by the board, $84,944.02, making a grand total of $768,778.26.

The estimated revenue is: From local levies, $616,878.28; returns from the State in gasoline and bus taxes, $60,000; returns from State in capitation taxes, $5,400; returns from State for dog taxes, $4,000; returns from State on excess fees, $6,000; returns from the scavenger department, $21,000; returns from the health department, $2,000; returns from the State for schools, $50,000; from local fines, $1,560; from miscellaneous sources, $2,000, making a grand total of $768,778.26.

Only six days remain in which persons wishing to participate in the coming county election, when all officers, with the exception of county clerk, will be elected, may pay poll taxes. All taxes must be paid on or before Saturday, May 2, to County Treasurer E. Wade Ball. Mr. Ball announces his office at the courthouse is open each week day from 8:30 to 4:30 o'clock and on Saturday until 1 o'clock.

The Better Government League, which has been created with Robert N. Anderson as temporary chairman, appeals to all taxpayers in the county to see to it that their poll taxes are paid.

The voters of the county this fall will be called upon to select five members of the county board which, on and after January 1, 1932, will replace the present three members of the board of supervisors.

The Arlington County Republican committee, of which J. E. Spaulding is chairman, will give a reception and dance to the Arlington County League of Republican Women tonight at Windsor Arms in Glebe road.

County Chairman Spaulding has announced that the officers of the League of Republican Women will act as hostesses.

Invitations have been extended to National and State officers of the party.

The Business and Professional Women's Club of Arlington County announces that Dr. Douglas Freeman, of Richmond, Va., will broadcast over Station WRVA, Richmond, tonight at 9:30 o'clock. Dr. Freeman will speak on "What to See in Virginia." The talk is given in the interest of the convention of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, to be held at Richmond the week of July 6.

The Chi Delta Gamma Sorority has elected the following officers: Miss Lillian Handy, president; Frances Bierly, vice president; Marie Smith, recording secretary; Marjorie Vaughn, corresponding secretary; Aleane Harrison, treasurer; Hildegarde Swenson, sentinel, and Ann Lipscomb, chaplain.

F. S. Biggs, of the Ballston Volunteer Fire Department, has been elected a member of the board of directors to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Eugene Payne.

Trials Set for Wednesday Over Land Dispute in Frederick County.

Special to The Washington Post.

Winchester, Va., April 26.—A court decree awarding title to a small strip of land in Frederick County to Mrs. Emma Clinger by reason of adverse possession has failed to stop fights among litigants and their friends, and as a result three cases of assault and battery are scheduled for trial in county court Wednesday.

The latest warrant was issued last night on complaint of Paul Wise and William White, who charged that Nelson Ritter, a neighbor, shot at them with a rifle "with intent to maim, disfigure and kill them." The cases of John W. Clinger, husband of Mrs. Emma Clinger, against Harvey Cornwell, alleging assault, and of Mrs. Pansy Plank Dove against Clinger and his wife, also alleging assault, are to be tried on the same day.

All of the cases were said to be the direct outcome of an injunction of January 3, 1930, whereby Mrs. Anna Belle Price, on the one side, and Emma, Alice and John Clinger were restrained and enjoined from going on the disputed land until after the court decided its ownership. Several days ago the court decreed the land belonged to Mrs. Emma Clinger.

The march, "Our Director," was played as a memorial to Frank Johnson former drum major, who lost his life while on duty in the strike area at Danville last winter. Flowers were placed on Mr. Johnson's grave by members of the band after the concert.

Frank K. Saunders, president of the band, gave a resume of the work of the band for the last year, during which time more than 40 concerts were given, including engagements in Richmond, Washington, Lynchburg and various points in the county.

Martinsburg, W. Va., April 26.—The investigation of a fire that destroyed the home of Leslie Trumboe, in the mountains west of here on April 11, was under way today by Deputy Fire Marshal A. K. Hovermale and State Policeman Ermit Clark, as a result of a story told by Mrs. Trumboe that the house burst into flames just after she had been tricked out of it by a false note delivered by an unidentified youth.

Mrs. Trumboe said the note was an appeal from a neighbor for help. With her mother-in-law she immediately started for the neighbor's home, but before she arrived there she noticed her house afire. The officers have been unable to find a boy answering the description of the youth Mrs. Trumboe involved.

FRANCIS SCOTT KEY HONORED AT SERVICE

Christian patriot who dedicated his life and his genius to his fellow men."

Mrs. Samuel Z. Shope, national president of the United States Daughters of 1812, congratulated the District of Columbia society for its action in placing the tablet. "Francis Scott Key gave us in verse the true spirit of American patriotism," she said. "The secret of the growth of this Nation is that it was built on Holy Writ and we are glad to place this witness in Washington Cathedral to attest to this fact."

Mrs. Sheriff Unveils Tablet.

The tablet was unveiled by Mrs. Clement William Sheriff, chairman of the tablet committee of the society and also its historian. Mrs. Sheriff is a great-grandniece of Col. John S. Skinner, who was Government agent for exchange of prisoners during the War of 1812, and on whose boat, The Minden, Mr. Key wrote the "Star-Spangled Banner" during the bombardment of Fort McHenry.

In the sentence and prayer of dedication, Bishop Freeman declared that he dedicated the tablet in "honor and tribute to Francis Scott Key, churchman, patriot and poet, to the end that his memorial may continue in the National Cathedral in the Capital of our country for all the years to come."

Music was furnished by the Cathedral Choir of men and boys under direction of Edgar Priest, organist and choirmaster. The hymn, "Lord, With Glowing Heart I'd Praise Thee," written by Francis Scott Key, was sung by J. F. M. Bowie. After the unveiling and the placing of a memorial wreath, the choir and assemblage sang "The Star-Spangled Banner."

This reception will be preceded by a tea at the National headquarters of the U. S. Daughters of 1812 at 1416 Rhode Island avenue northwest from 3 to 4:30 p. m.

HOW IT BEGAN

By Russ Murphy and Roy Sarnoshy

TELL IT TO THE MARINES

SAILORS ALWAYS WERE CONTEMPTUOUS ABOUT THE ABILITY OF MARINES AS SEAMEN. THIS EXPRESSION OF DISBELIEF AROSE FROM THE SUPPOSED IGNORANCE AND CREDULITY OF THE MARINES AS LANDSMEN ABOARD SHIP. THE EXPRESSION AT FIRST WAS: "TELL IT TO THE MARINES—A SAILOR WON'T BELIEVE IT."

PORTER HOUSE STEAKS

BEFORE THE REVOLUTION, COLONIALS MET TO DISCUSS POLITICAL AFFAIRS AT THE SHIP CAULKERS' HALL IN BOSTON. THESE MEETINGS WERE FIRST CALLED CAULKERS' MEETINGS. THE SPELLING OF CAULKERS WAS LATER CHANGED TO "CAUCUS."

LEARN TO SWIM.

MR. P. H. HUEDEPOHL advises communities to conduct a yearly "learn to swim" campaign. A factory manufacturing swimming suits has reprinted this detailed advice and will supply the pamphlet on request.

The first essential is to get newspaper support. One newspaper of a city can usually be persuaded to take the project under its wing. Many of them now conduct annual swimming contests for the monarchs of the sport. The plan of promoting universal swimming, therefore, would find some one of the newspapers in the right mood.

The newspaper runs a series of articles stressing the fun of swimming, the health benefits, and the insurance against drowning. The facts of the campaign are recited—who the teachers are, the place, the hours, and the divisions into classes by age and sexes. The paper prints an application blank with instructions as to how it is to be filled in and where it is to be sent. The instruction is given in groups. The instructors chosen must know how to give group instruction. The classes are run in half hour periods from 10 in the morning until 9 at night. After each fifth day of instruction there is a sixth day given over to testing the pupils.

The method of teaching swimming to groups is given in text books. The American Red Cross has one and there are many others. Almost every swimming instructor has had some experience in teaching swimming to groups.

It may be desirable to arrange for some sort of badge showing membership and some sort of an attendance card, or some prizes for those who show superior progress.

The first meeting is given over to registration of applicants and classification of pupils. Some amount of testing the fitness and ability is generally required, but as a rule the statements made are accepted, and physical and other emanations are superficial.

The first lessons are for the purpose of removing fear. The pupil is to learn that water as a support and environment is almost on a par with earth and air. He learns that the dangers of swimming are largely of one's own making. The great hazards are almost altogether the result of panic—individual panic or group panic. The installation of confidence follows on the heels of the banishment of fear. Then follows the technique of swimming — breathing, rhythm, position of the head, and use of the muscles.

SOAKS LICE IN ALCOHOL.

Mrs. G. S. writes: I have a way of killing lice that is simpler than yours. Wet the hair thoroughly with alcohol at night. Wrap the head to hold in the alcohol fumes. Remove the cloth in the morning. Repeat on the third night and again three nights later, and your trouble is over.

REPLY.

The objection to your method is that it calls fof three apllications and requires one week, and necessitates a good deal of alcohol.

Alcohol is expensive and not easy to get for this purpose. Besides, it may contain wood alcohol or other poison. You are right in one thing. Lice are fastidious and don't like it.

A prize of $100 cash is given for the best ad submitted in these two weeks. If the winner of that cash prize is a subscriber to The Daily and Sunday Washington Post he will receive an additional $10 in cash. Instead of buying a paper each day, why not be a regular subscriber? It is much more convenient and your paper is always obtainable by stepping outside your door in the morning. Then should you be the prize winner of that $100 in cash you will receive $110.

Remember, besides the first prize there are many others worth winning. Think of that $165 ABC Washer, those three strands of Triple X Riechelieu pearls, the 565 merchandise awards and all those special prizes the participating concerns are offering for this combined period of the third and fourth week. The mental picture of all these prizes should inspire you to write not one but many ads each day.

Requirements Are Simple.

For those who have never written an ad in The Post Zain ad-writing test, here's a tip: It's easy; if you can write a letter you can write an ad. All you need is a pencil and a large sheet of paper.

This contest is for amateurs only. That means that layout, art work and skillful technique are not important. What is important is originality of ideas. Think for yourself. Visualize the business; get a picture in your mind of how a particular business got started. Then watch it grow. Put yourself in the place of the management and see what you are doing for the public. What is it you want to sell merchandise, service or prestige? Whatever it is, tell us frankly.

Write ads for all concerns—there is a reason. To compete for the grand award of $1,000 at the close of this contest an ad must be written about each of the 35 participating concerns. It is well to remember that by subscribing to The Post now you will be given an additional $50 in cash if you win the grand prize of $1,000 and are a regular daily and Sunday subscriber. Read the box notice on this page for particulars about this additional prize.

Now Is Time to Start.

Today is the day to start. You should write about 5 ads a day, including Sunday, and more if you can. When this combined period ends you will have only two more weeks to compete for the grand award of $1,000. If you write five ads a day now, during this third and fourth week you will have most of the concerns written about and then you can write an ad for each of them over again. The second or third time you do that you will produce better ads. You will have to admit that the ad that wins the $1,000 has got to be pretty good.

The best idea of any may be lurking around at the bottom of your mind waiting for a pencil, a sheet of paper and flying fingers to release the prisoner. Then instead of an irritating something you will find it's a thought of magic. It will be new, and like a butterfly it will dance before the eyes of the judges and say "Forget me if you can."

Don't try to be professional. Tell just what you think about this or that concern. It's easy. You are competing with other amateurs like yourself. Your ad may be a letter, a poem, a slogan, or just a regular ad. Don't bother about spelling, punctuation, art work or layout. State your ideas briefly.

For instance, try an ad on the Boyd Business School. Don't gamble with your future. Tire Prizes Should Be Easy.

You who are owners of automobiles, here is good news. Bailey Tire Stores are giving a standard passenger size United States Royal Tire each for a week for the best ad on Bailey Stores and United States Royal Tires. Winning that prize should be easy. Let every one who is not acquainted with the Bailey Stores policies and merchandise familiarize himself with them by paying them a visit. Those of you who are acquainted write your ad now about this nationally known "more miles for your money" tire.

When the last bitter hour strikes our loved ones, and they become just a memory, let them sleep the last long sleep amid the happiest of surroundings. To give you that sympathetic understanding, that quiet, dignified service that is so appreciated, call the Deal Funeral Home. Here is a subject that both men and women can write about.

Right Clothing Assured.

Your personal appearance is your greatest asset. Suits tailored at J. M. Stein & Co., specialists in young men's tailoring, insure one of the right clothing at all times.

Last, but assuredly not least in our suggestions for today, is that of an ad on that famous Wilkins Coffee. Have your pencil and paper within reach, then try a cup of this delicious—just wonderful coffee—you will notice an immediate change in your "Zain Ad-Store-Room." It will fly open and many excellent ads will be released. Wilkins Coffee almost guarantees that every time you get a whiff of its fragrant aroma, out will pop a new idea for a better Zain ad.

Make your start today—write all the adds you can. Mail as many as you like in one envelope to The Post Zain Ad-Test Editor of The Washington Post.

BANKING SITUATION SEEN AS IMPROVING

Good Management Declared Vital to Correction of Existing Evils.

New York, April 26 (A.P.).—A study of the banking situation in the United States has led the American Bankers Association economic policy commission to conclude that "the major correction is to be worked out within banking itself along lines of good bank management rather than through any drastic legislative measures," it reported today.

Making public the first section of a study undertaken for the bankers association, the commission, headed by R. S. Hecht, president of the Hibernia Bank & Trust Co. of New Orleans, made the encouraging statement that the situation has taken a distinct change for the better since the first of the year, justifying confidence that the worst is over. It added that the drastic process of bank suspensions has relieved banking of the great bulk of its weak institutions.

In support of this statement, the commission called attention to the sharp drop in the monthly total of bank failures, from 344 in December to 78 in February, a drop of 77 per cent.

Analyzing the status of the 1,345 banks with deposits of $868,000,000 that suspended permanently or temporarily in 1930, the commission found that in general no specific type of institution was entirely immune. The determining factor, it found, was universally the type of management, not the kind of organization.

It found that the sections of the country that suffered most are mainly dependent upon agricultural conditions and held the drought was partly responsible. It computed that the average bank that ended in suspension, excepting three large institutions, was less than one-third of the general average size of 24,630 banks operating in the country at the beginning of 1930, indicating the small country banks constitute the main part of the problem.

Good management kept all classes of banks sound, the commission said. In some instances branch and group organizations have distinctly aided good management in attaining its aims of rendering broader, sounder financial services to the community, but, it added, "we would not say that this necessarily implies that multiple banking is a panacea for banking ills or that it is generally applicable to all places or areas.

The commission recognized that many well-managed banks in country districts have been destroyed by economic changes of a local nature, but asked, "Is it not, in fact, a function of bank management to understand economic conditions and anticipate changes?"

"We can not alter major economic conditions. Therefore we must conform to them."

In that connection, the commission referred to unofficial reports, indicating more than 600 bank consolidations and absorptions in 1930, and held in many instances this indicated that "good bank management, by anticipating the inevitable, prevented bank failures."

"The fact that we can not change economic conditions does not warrant an attitude of fatalistic resignation."

Notorious Gunman Is Seized in Jersey

Man, Believed by Police to Be James Nannery, Is Found With Woman.

Dover, N. J., April 26 (A.P.).—A man believed to be James Nannery, notorious gunman and escaped Sing Sing convict, was captured by a policeman today as he sat in a parked car with a red-haired woman, identified as Patricia Burke.

The policeman, Charles Ripley, crept up behind the car, ordered the man out and marched him along the street until they met Sergt. John Valley. Valley took two .45-caliber pistols and a tear gas pistol from Nannery's pockets. Meantime, the woman drove off. The roads were posted and she was picked up later by State troopers.

After arraignment today, Nannery was to be taken to the county jail at Morristown under heavy guard. Lieut. Edward Gebhart, of Morris County, said Nannery was wanted for an East Orange bank holdup.

Counselor of the Turkish Embassy for three years in Washington by appointment of the President and Minister of Foreign Affairs. Formerly First Secretary in various Embassies in Europe. Director of Foreign Section at the Ministry of Foreign Affairs in Turkey.

The more extensive a man's acquaintance with the comparative merits of gasolines and motor fuels—the more readily he recognizes the true worth of Amoco-Gas.

It is a distinct tribute to the quality and uniformity of Amoco-Gas, that a motorist of Mr. Bedi's international experience should select this original special motor fuel for use in his car while stationed in the United States.

LOOK FORWARD!

Adverse reports of earnings seem to have enveloped the business world in gloom. It is an ex post facto gloom, not based upon improving conditions but upon the hard conditions of last year. As usual, it is fashionable to indulge in competition in going to extremes. At a time when it is known that conditions are slowly improving, business men vie in sounding the doleful note. In this rushing to extremes they are following their own example of 1929, when they could not see the top of prosperity, and boasted that "old economic laws have been repealed."

Senator Couzens puts up to the Chamber of Commerce of the United States a few pointed questions, upon which it would do well to ponder at its Atlantic City meeting. He asks what the chamber intends to do on the wage question. Will it adopt the policy of defeatism and favor a cut in wages, or will it grasp the truth that maintenance of wages is the solid bridge upon which American industry can pass over the depression and reach good times?

Reduction of wages at this time would be a deadly blow at business recovery. About 45,000,000 workers are employed, and their wages constitute the backbone of American purchasing power. These producers are heavy consumers. They can keep the wheels turning so long as they are paid regular wages. Cut them down, and their purchases will shrink, and the industries now complaining of overproduction will have real instead of partly imaginary trouble.

Wholesale reductions of wages would give rise to labor difficulties of a dangerous character. Strikes might be expected, and no one can foretell what these strikes might precipitate. Idle and hungry men easily become a dangerous element. An industry which lays off men may find it difficult to reorganize its crews at a time when competitors are making hay.

Most of the great industrial concerns have large cash reserves. While they might not be able to maintain full crews at regular pay out of current earnings, they can do so by drawing moderately upon their reserves. Why should they not do this? American laboring men are contributing their share when 5,000,000 of them are going without work or wages. Industry can afford to do its share by keeping up wages and thereby encouraging consumption of goods.

The one sure road to disaster is for American industry to lose its grip at this juncture. The only sure method of regaining prosperity is to do "business as usual," keeping men employed as far as possible, and paying them full wages. The cost of doing this is much less than it would cost industry to recover from demoralization of the labor market and the shrinkage of consumption resulting from increased idleness.

The Chamber of Commerce of the United States has a splendid opportunity to take the leadership of American business by resolving to maintain the wage scale. An optimistic note from Atlantic City, definitely advising all industries and all business men to keep their labor fully paid, would reassure the whole country and go far to dispel the unnecessary gloom that has been caused by mulling over last year's poor business reports. Last year is not an index of this year or the next. Let the business men gathered at Atlantic City look forward, and not back.

BILLIONS FOR SCHOOLS.

Expenditures for public education in the United States keep uniform pace with the Nation's income. Virtually one-fourth of the total amount received from Federal, State and local taxation is spent for school purposes. The annual total expenditure for elementary and secondary education amounts to $2,180,000,000, and an additional $264,300,000 goes to tax-supported collegiate schools.

The investment in buildings, grounds and equipment for the grade schools in this country has reached the sum of $5,486,000,000 and nearly $1,000,000,000 more has been spent to provide plants for the institutions of higher learning. Ceaseless effort is made to increase the efficiency of the entire American educational system. As State, city and country requirements grow with increasing population additional expenditures are needed, and a survey recently completed indicates that for the last ten years the tax income of the Nation and the cost of maintaining the schools have increased at the same rate.

No other country spends as much or as great a percentage of its income for education as the United States, but the same is true in almost every line of expenditure. The National Educational Association has recently been checking up on other American disbursements in the home markets to make comparison with the yearly outlay for mental culture. It finds that school costs are not excessive, even if they do consume about 25 per cent of the taxable income of $9,250,000,000, since the total income of the United States is about ten times as much as the tax income. Americans spent $3,000,000,000 a year for life insurance and $6,500,000,000 for such luxuries as tobacco, candy, theaters, sporting goods, toys, jewelry, perfumes and cosmetics. They put $7,000,000,000 annually into building construction, and $12,500,000,000, no less, represents the yearly automobile bill. So, comparatively, it appears that with all the fine school buildings and the large sums spent for public education, this rich Nation is not overly extravagant.

TO WORK FOR HEALTH.

Washington is to become the greatest health and medical research center in the world. The last Congress created the National Institute of Health, which will engage in pure research in the field of disease and its causes. All branches of science will concentrate upon the problems pertaining to the health of man. The hygienic laboratory of the Public Health Service was turned over to the new organization, and adjoining land will be used for additional buildings, which will be thoroughly equipped by means of a Federal appropriation.

This new research center will join the Smithsonian Institution and the Library of Congress and become the third institution created by the Government that will be allowed to receive donations for specific or general purposes in connection with the work, or for fellowships. Donations of $500,000 or more are to be acknowledged by suitable memorials. The work will come under the domain of the surgeon general and the Public Health Service, but the research in fundamental problems relating to the diseases of man will not only be studied here but throughout the world by delegated specialists.

In addition to the official staff there has just been formed the conference board of the National Institute of Health, with former Senator Joseph E. Ransdell, of Louisiana, as executive director. This board, as an unofficial body, will aid the institute in making practical application of its scientific efforts. Senator Ransdell, in explaining the work to the Parent-Teacher Association, said: "Here, under a commander in chief, will be marshaled the Nation's army of experts in the sciences of medicine, surgery, psychiatry, dentistry, chemistry, physics, biology, bacteriology, pharmacy and all allied professions in a concentrated drive to prevent disease by ascertaining the cause and applying preventive measures in advance of its outbreak."

The Institute of Health will be supplied with everything in the way of modern equipment for its exhaustive studies. The work is already well advanced under Surgeon General Cumming. The National Capital will shortly have in active operation an institution whose investigations into the remaining mysteries of disease will be awaited by the scientists of every country.

SOVIET RECOGNITION.

The address by Green H. Hackworth, solicitor of the State Department, before the American Society of International Law, gives assurance that there will be no change in the policy of the State Department with regard to recognition of Soviet Russia. When Secretary Stimson announced recently that his department would make a special study of Soviet conditions it was feared that the well-established policy of the Harding and Coolidge administrations would be weakened. But Mr. Hackworth reiterates the circumstances which make it impossible for the United States to recognize the Communist regime.

The Moscow government, Mr. Hackworth points out, fails to comply with the fundamental conditions of international intercourse. It has failed to protect the lives and property of foreigners within its jurisdiction. Property of American citizens was confiscated by the Communists and no compensation has been made. The debt which Russia owes to American taxpayers has been repudiated. No government which refuses to pay the national debts is worthy to associate in the family of nations. What is considered still more serious, the Soviet fails to respect the right of other nations to develop their institutions and conduct their internal affairs without interference. The clique which is in control of Russia is determined to contaminate the whole world with communism.

One other reason why the United States refuses to enter into diplomatic relations with the Soviet is the inherent dishonesty of the Moscow regime. One of the fundamental principles on which Soviet political theory is based is the repudiation of contracts, promises or obligations whenever it is to the advantage of the dictatorship to do so. The Moscovites have absolutely no integrity in international affairs.

In addition to the Communist propaganda which is disseminated in this country with a view to overthrowing the Government and making the United States a Soviet republic, Joseph Stalin's gang is sponsoring a campaign of lying propaganda in Russia. Its purpose is to inspire the Russian peasants with fear of a capitalistic war of intervention.

In a solemn session the Communist International, propaganda agency of the Soviet, adopted a resolution, accusing President Hoover of creating a "special organization under the label of a committee for the relief of farmers, headed by (Alexander) Legge, former chief of the supply department of the allied army in the imperialist war." "By this committee," the resolution continues, "were bought, to the amount of $500,000,000, supplies to satisfy the commissariat needs of an interventionist army. The supplies were bought with extraordinary haste to meet the date appointed by French imperialism for the beginning of military intervention against the U. S. S. R., and were held in ports on the Atlantic Ocean." The wild absurdity of this view of the Farm Board needs no comment.

In Siberia the Ogpu, the Soviet's agency of terrorism, has arrested several managers of cotton plantations who are accused of conspiring with foreign cotton-producing countries to ruin that industry in Russia. Another mock trial for the stimulation of antiforeign sentiment is in prospect. Moscow's dictators have no regard for the truth when perjury and fabrication serve their purpose. The United States could only bring injury to itself by recognizing such a regime.

HOPE FOR VIRGIN ISLANDS.

Dr. W. W. Skinner, expert of the Bureau of Chemistry and Soils, does not agree with President Hoover that the Virgin Islands are an "effective poorhouse." Dr. Skinner has just returned from a visit to the islands, during which he investigated their resources and industries. He found the people scarcely able to provide for themselves because for two generations they have depended upon their single crop of sugar cane. The Virgin Islands can not hope to compete under present conditions with Cuba, Porto Rico, Santo Domingo and Hawaii in the production of sugar, but Dr. Skinner sees no reason why they should not develop other crops that will make them self-sustaining, or nearly so.

The Virgin Islands are comparable to the British Island of Barbados, which is almost self-supporting. Many resources in these islands have not yet been developed. Their greatest need, in the opinion of the agricultural expert, is more diversified farming. It is quite possible for the people to produce their own food, and if agriculture were supplemented by fishing the inhabitants of the islands could support themselves. The waters about the islands abound in fish. Apparently all that is needed to stimulate this industry is the introduction of modern methods.

The bay oil industry has by no means reached a maximum development. Methods of reaping the bay plant and of extracting the oil are antiquated. Dr. Skinner sees inviting possibilities for expanding this industry if it is handled in the right way. Furthermore, the Island of St. Croix is especially adapted to the production of insecticidal plants which are of great value in American agriculture.

The Virgin Islands need rehabilitation. There is no reason why they should be considered an economic failure merely because one industry has collapsed.

NONVIOLENCE IN INDIA

By H. N. BRAILSFORD, in the Forum.

To understand why this Nation, at last so nearly united, remains nonviolent one must discard all one's Western heritage. Nonviolence is more than a religious tenet; it is a racial instinct. What Gandhi has done is to reaffirm it against the drift of Western example and teaching. He has embraced nationalism, a Western importation, and dared to preach that it can triumph by adopting in its struggle the ancient Hindu tactic.

With that word, however, misunderstanding begins. There are millions of Indians for whom nonviolence is nothing more than a tactic which one practices because one lacks arms and the military tradition against an enemy who has both. Nonviolence is, indeed, a tactic from which one expects somewhat contradictory effects. It may embarrass one's opponent, as a general strike might do, by making it impossible to conduct the normal course of administration and trade. That is its mechanical aspect, which we of the West grasp readily enough; if none obeys when we command, if no one pays taxes, or buys what we export, empire comes to an end.

But abimsa (nonviolence) has also a mystical meaning. One overcomes one's enemy by love—an effect hardly likely to follow from the boycott of his trade. Again, by one's own self-restraint one awakens shame within him for his violence. In the mind of the Mahatma and his immediate followers, abimsa is but part of a moral discipline through which India must pass if she would be free. The deepest conviction of the Indian tradition is the belief that the saint who can control himself may command the universe. In this unfamiliar kernel of religion lies the originality of this unique movement, and one, at least, of the secrets of its power.

Men will respond even in the India of today to a religious appeal, undistracted by the hum of our airplanes and the clatter of our armored cars. I heard from a scrupulous man of science this evidence from his own experience. He was among the Santals, a primitive aboriginal tribe of the hills which from time immemorial has lived by hunting. The legend reached them of this saint who had arisen in the plains below. Over one sentence of his message they pondered deeply, and then with implicit obedience they acted. The saint had said, "Let the creatures of the forest have peace." They burned their bows and arrows and snares and, for the first time in uncounted centuries, took to tilling the soil.

CHICKEN POX.

They bring my supper on a tray
An' won't let me go out to play,
An' Florence May, who lives next door,
Can't visit for a week or more
Or step inside our house at all,
Coz children aren't allowed to call
An' see my dolls and building blocks,
I'm all broke out with chicken pox!

I feel all right, but I've got spots
All over me like little knots
You tie in wool, an' while they're red
The doctor makes me stay in bed,
But I can hear the children shout
An' don't see why I can't get out.
An' mother says: "Don't worry so,
You've got the chicken pox, you know."

The chicken pox is something which
Won't hurt you much, but makes you itch,
An' everywhere there is a patch
That is the place you want to scratch,
But nurse won't let you, an' all day
She thinks up games which you can play
So you'll forget (that's what she said)
How hard it is to stay in bed.

If You Would Learn the Truth About a Land, Go Visit It Yourself

By ROBERT QUILLEN

A MAD German philosopher once said that the only Christian the world ever saw died on the cross.

That is true only in the sense that imitators never equal the excellence of the master.

As a matter of fact there are Christ-like men everywhere, and the teachings of Christ are the dominant force in our civilization.

Critics fail to see the truth because they judge the master by the sorry work of his pupils—because they accept the interpretation of Christianity given by long-faced, intolerant religionists—because, in short, they don't know what Christianity is and won't take the trouble to find out.

The way to learn the meaning of any teaching is to consult the teacher.

Popular critics have taught this generation to regard Christianity as nothing more than a narrow creed of morality, designed to take the joy out of life and meddle in the affairs of the neighbors.

Fortunately, the truth can be discovered by the simple expedient of consulting the life and teachings of the Christ. You need not be a theologian to understand simple words and plain facts.

The first recorded miracle of Jesus was the turning of water into wine to please the guests at a wedding celebration. That was not the work of a "killjoy."

His biographers say that He went about doing good. Intolerant men don't spend their lives that way. He was intolerant only of hypocrisy, injustice and wrong.

What, then, did He teach?

He said: "A new commandment I give unto you: that ye love one another." And again He said that the whole law is comprised in two commandments: to love God and love one another. If that is the whole of Christianity, where is the fault in it?

But, you say, men are judged by the way they live.

There is but one picture of the final judgment, "when the Son of Man shall come in His glory * * * and before Him shall be gathered all nations."

"Then shall the King say unto them on His right hand, Come, ye blessed of my Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you * * * I was an hungered, and ye gave me meat; I was thirsty and ye gave me drink * * * naked and ye clothed me * * * Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me."

That is the Christianity of Christ, and there is no other.

What fault do you find in that?

Press Comment Upon Acts and Actors in the Great American Show, "Politics."

Pinchotism Gone Mad.

Philadelphia Public Ledger.

During his first administration Gov. Pinchot made it a rule that every person to whom he offered an appointment, whether honorary or one to which a salary was attached, must give him a written pledge to obey the prohibition amendment. Thus far in his present term the governor has gone a step farther, and in addition to the constitutional oath required of all officeholders to support and obey the Constitution and laws of the State and Nation, he demands of them a pledge to "loyally support the policies approved by the people of the Commonwealth in the election of 1930."

This is going pretty far to impose political obedience to "polices" which have not been translated into laws, and a Philadelphia woman, an applicant for the renewal of her commission as a notary public, refuses to submit to what she describes as an illegal usurpation of power by the executive. She and a Philadelphia taxpayer have carried the issue into the Dauphin County court with an application for an injunction to restrain the governor and his employes from this mixing of politics and jobs. There seems to be some doubt at the State capital about the power of the courts to restrain these political vagaries of Gov. Pinchot, but some way should certainly be found to determine how far such arbitrary, factional activities can be carried, and how far the authority of the governor extends in subjecting State employes to subservience to his own political opinions.

When the women say wet and the women say dry, what's a presidential candidate to do?

The Speakership.

Topeka Capital.

In his column Calvin Coolidge remarks that if the House at Washington wants a Speaker from outside, former Speaker and ex-Senator Gillett, of Massachusetts, would fill the bill. Mr. Coolidge has no intention of accepting the job, if the House really wants an outsider, but thinks it constitutional. It may be, the question never having been raised. The House is expected to be in a deadlock, or near to it. The Constitution provides for a presiding officer from the outside for the Senate, and so gives him a deciding vote. But a Speaker not elected to Congress would be merely a presiding officer, with no vote, a political robot. If the House got into a tie, it would have to get itself out of it the best it knew how.

Morrow and Second Place.

Houston Post-Dispatch.

The name of Dwight W. Morrow, senator from New Jersey, has been added to the list of those of men considered as possibilities for the Republican vice presidential nomination. The suggestion is being heard in the East that the ticket in 1932 be Hoover and Morrow. It is conceded by virtually everybody, with the possible exception of former Senator France, of Maryland, who says he is himself a candidate for the first place on the ticket, that Mr. Hoover will be renominated. The business of the prognosticators now is to pick his running mate.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Local Geography Should Be Taught in Public Schools of Washington. National History in City Landmarks.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Let me suggest that, in connection with the Washington Bicentennial, special attention be given to the teaching of local geography in the public schools. The location of the main points of interest and one or more important facts relating to each could be easily taught. Parents could readily be induced to take their children on trips which would firmly fix in the minds of the latter what they learned in the classroom. If it were possible to arrange for public school bus trips, no doubt they might help a great deal.

The parents themselves would profit by these enjoyable research trips, and visitors to Washington in 1932 would be pleased to find young and old ready in many cases to save them the trouble of consulting information booths. In fact, every family would be a reliable information bureau.

Heads of families do not always have as much time as they would like in which to enlighten their sightseeing out-of-town guests. With the children properly instructed there is no need for worry on that account. A bright girl or boy, well informed, can make a sightseeing outing quite as entertaining and instructive as any grown-up.

There are numerous volumes dealing with places of interest in the National Capital which could be profitably read in the study of our local geography. In addition to others, "Washington: City of Mighty Events," by The Post's popular historian, Barbee, would serve the purpose excellently as a concise and at the same time entertaining textbook.

Leaving out of consideration the demands of the Bicentennial, I hope it will not be long before picturesque and historic Washington is given the front rank to which it is entitled in the public school curriculum. Then, as our boys and girls grow up, every citizen will know his Washington thoroughly, and the time may come when grateful tourists, recounting how they fared in our midst, may be inspired to exclaim, "Why, even the young children of Washington are familiar with national history"

Speaker of the House Was Intended to Be Chosen From the Members of the House.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The suggestion that a Speaker can be legally chosen from outside the membership of the House of Representatives does not look good to me, a plain citizen.

My idea is that the writers of the Constitution desired to keep it free from "fine points" and aimed to word it so that as far as possible it could be plainly understood by plain citizens.

The Constitution says: "The House of Representatives shall choose their Speaker and other officers." According to that wording it may be that it would be technnically proper for the House to elect a nonmember Speaker—possibly a citizen of some other country. But how about the intention?

Our Constitution makers had considerable fondness for the ballot-box, and I find it impossible to believe that they intended to give the House of Representatives discretion to choose a presiding officer who had not been indorsed directly by the voters. They would have laughed at the suggestion. They simply did not think it necessary in so many words to provide that the most important official of the House should be a member, and an experienced one at that.

Ideas in regard to our fundamental law by those who are presumed to speak with authority are sometimes decidedly far-fetched. Take the recent Judge Clark opinion on ratification of constitutional amendments, for instance. But, fortunately, the Constitution, on account of its directness and plain wording, is its own best defender. As a humble protest against all attempts to go behind the intent of its framers, I hope you may find a place for this in your letter column. CHAS. RUMSEY.

Automobile Fender Menders Hammer and Murder Quiet in Residential Neighborhoods—And No One to Blame.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The communication from your correspondent with respect to the unnecessary honking of automobile horns in Washington I am quite sure expresses the conviction of a great many people.

Another worse nuisance is the establishment in residential sections of shops specializing in the trade of repairing automobile bodies and fenders. From its nature, this work is essentially noisy, and it is noise of the harshest kind. It violates the quiet to which people in their homes are entitled to the extent of being both ear-splitting and nerve-racking. It is comparatively a new subtrade which has developed with the growth of the automobile industry, and were the zone laws to be formulated today it would assuredly be relegated to the places where it belongs.

Some months ago one of these shops was opened in the alley back of my residence, and whangs and bangs early and late and on Sundays and holidays. It is a destroyer of all idea of home quiet. I have noted others in other neighborhoods, and the evil is growing. It is unbelieveable that residents should be made the victims of an outrage of this type. The Board of Health says that it is none of its affair, and the Police Department says that the zone laws permit it. But I contend that the pounding on metals with heavy hammers within earshot of a home is an undeniable public nuisance and should be promptly prohibited by the proper authority. C. H. B.

Royalty Sees U. S. Envoy's Son Married

Mr. Booth Takes as Bride Miss Winifred Wessel in Copenhagen.

DANISH royalty was well represented Saturday afternoon at the marriage of Miss Winifred Wessel, daughter of the Chilean Minister to Denmark, and Mr. John Lord Booth, son of the American Minister to Copenhagen, Mr. Ralph Harmon Booth, which took place Saturday. Those of royal blood present were the king's brother, Prince Gustave, his sister, Princess Thyra, and the king's nephews, Prince Axel, Prince Eric and Prince Vigo, with their wives.

The ceremony was performed in the idyllic Church Langelinie, where on March 4 Miss Virginia Booth, sister of the bridegroom, was married to Mr. William Dickermann Vogel. Mrs. Booth, then Miss Wessel, was one of the bridesmaids for Mrs. Vogel. Mr. and Mrs. Vogel have been on their wedding trip in southern France and Italy and returned to Denmark for the wedding before coming to this country, where they will make their home.

The Rev. Dr. Jesson, chaplain of the British Legation, officiated in the presence of members of the Diplomatic Corps, officials and resident society.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of the traditional ivory satin and, in deference to the Danish custom, she wore a wreath of myrtle, in which orange blossoms had been twined, over her veil.

Little Doreen Wessel, the bride's sister, who was train bearer for Mr. Booth's sister at her recent wedding, with little Helen Huitfeldt, youngest daughter of the Norwegian Minister, carried the long train of the bride. Miss Freddie Wessel, and Miss Barbara Wessel, cousins of the bride; Miss Louise Huitfeldt, eldest daughter of the Norwegian Minister; Baroness Cecile Schilling, and Miss Winifred Scarf, were the bridesmaids. All the attendants wore frocks of pale blue crepe with picture hats of the same shade.

The best man was Mr. Charles Cramer, of Detroit, Mich. The ushers were Mr. Harold Wessel and Mr. Robert Wessel, brothers of the bride; Mark Stevens and Mr. Robert Kales, both of Detroit.

After the ceremony there was a reception at the Chilean Legation.

Mr. and Mrs. Booth will pass their wedding trip in the south of Europe, and in September they will come to this country where they will make their home in Detroit.

Senator and Mrs. Morrow Spend Week-End in Paris.

Senator Dwight W. Morrow, who with Mrs. Morrow has been in Europe for several weeks, spent the week-end in Paris after passing three weeks in Sicily, where he spent most of his time visiting Greek and Roman ruins. Today Senator and Mrs. Morrow will go to London and will sail in a few days for this country.

The Morrows passed their brief sojourn in Paris with the American Ambassador and Mrs. Walter E. Edge, who are close friends.

The Association for the Preservation of Virginia Antiquities will follow on May 12 their long-established custom of making a pilgrimage at this season to one of the renowned historic shrines within the borders of Virginia.

The destination chosen for this year's pilgrimage will be Monticello. In architecture an H-style dwelling, Monticello was the home of Thomas Jefferson, who here expounded the rights of man to such listeners as Lafayette, Kosciuszko and Kossuth the Knight. The building, 30 years in construction, with the acres of lawn surrounding, has claimed visitors of all nations and creeds—numbering yearly about 20,000.

Senor Don Guillermo E. Gonzalez, the Commercial Counselor of the Costa Rican Legation, with his wife, Senora de Gonzalez, have moved from the legation on Connecticut avenue to Wardman Park Hotel, where they will make their home.

Mrs. Frank Royer Keefer has returned to Washington after spending the winter in Italy and on the Riviera. Mrs. Keefer is not making any social engagements on account of the recent death of her father, Mr. Henry Terrell, of San Antonio, Tex.

Date Set for Journey To Williamsburg.

Thursday and Friday have been selected by the women's organizations of Bruton Church for the annual pilgrimage to Williamsburg, Va. This year it will be given in cooperation with the Virginia tour of historic homes and gardens for the restoration of Wakefield, the birthplace of George Washington. On these days a number of the old homes and shrines will be opened to the public and offers an opportunity to outsiders to visit Williamsburg more intimately than can be done at other times.

The recently restored St. George Tucker house, with magnificent boxwood garden, can be seen. The Barlow house and garden, the Coke house, with its beautiful furniture; the Bracken, Christian and McCandlish cottages, restored; the Mercer house, the Peyton Randolph house and the rambling Benjamin Waller house, the next oldest home in Williamsburg, with its interesting antiques and quaint garden, are all to be opened. The Powder Horn and the old jail may also be seen.

The beautiful Sir Christopher Wren Building at the College of William and Mary has just been completely restored according to the original plans. It is the oldest college building in America. The Wythe house, home of Chancellor George Wythe, a signer of the Declaration of Independence, with its lovely Chippendale and Queen Anne furniture, may all be visited.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Fleming have reserved a box for the gala night of the Greater National Capital committee at the National Theater May 3. Among others who have made reservations are Mr. and Mrs. Karl Corby and Mr. and Mrs. Edward F. Colladay.

The arrangements for the Winchester, Va., trip sponsored by the Sweet Briar Alumnae Association for the Apple Blossom Festival, May 6, are completed. The day's outing includes the round trip and luncheon at Miss Carrie Hunter's as well as seats for the parade. The motor buses are scheduled to leave the Mayflower Hotel at 9:30 o'clock in the morning and will return to the starting point about 6 o'clock in the evening. Reservations for the trip should be made not later than Saturday.

Patronesses for the trip include Mrs. Henry Shepherd, Mrs. Bernard Wyckoff, Mrs. Randolph Leigh, Mrs. Robert O. Saunders, Mrs. William B. Sims, Miss Margaret Bannister, Miss Theda Sherman, Mrs. Charles Howze, Mrs. Moral Warren, Mrs. Theodore N. Gill, Miss Katherine Leadbetter, Miss L. Elizabeth Saunders, Miss Dorothy Markham, Miss Nancy Hanna, Miss Frances Henderson, Miss Lucille Schoolfield and Miss Adelaide Wampler.

Aileen Tobin Married on West Coast

Former Minister's Niece Becomes Bride of Mr. McCormick.

A wedding of interest to Washington, which took place Saturday in San Francisco, was that of Miss Aileen Tobin, daughter of Mrs. Clement Tobin, of New York and San Francisco, and the late Mr. Tobin, and Mr. Ernest O. McCormick, jr., son of Mrs. E. O. McCormick and the late Mr. McCormick.

Mrs. McCormick is the niece of the former American Minister to the Netherlands, Mr. Richard Tobin, who gave her in marriage.

The ceremony was performed in St. Matthew's Church, San Mateo. The bride wore an ivory satin gown made on simple lines. The train was edged with rare rose point and she wore a tulle veil with coronet of lace. The bride carried a sheaf of calla lillies.

The maid of honor was Miss Agnes Clark, the bride's cousin, a granddaughter of the late Senator William A. Clark, of Montana. Other attendants were Miss Douglas Lewis, the former Miss Janet Whitman, Mrs. Clarence Postley; Misses Patricia Tobin and Margaret and Mary McCormick, sisters of the bridegroom. They wore gowns of chartreuse lace, rough straw hats to match and carried water lillies.

The best man was Mr. Henry McCormick, and the ushers were Mr. Rowland Johnston, Mr. William Costello, Mr. Douglas Lewis, Mr. W. E. Dean, Mr. George Russell, Mr. Alan Keith, Mr. Bourn Hayne, Mr. Oliver Dibble, jr., and Mr. William Howard.

The church was decorated in white and green with touches of gold. The walls were covered with huckleberry greens. Hawthorne trees were placed at intervals along the walls and cathedral candles in gold torcheres outlined the main aisle. White iris tied with yellow satin ribbons decorated the pew ends.

Breakfast at the Burlingame Country Club followed the ceremony. The couple will reside in San Francisco.

The bride was graduated from the Spence School in New York and made her debut there in 1928 and also in San Mateo at a large ball given by her aunt, Mrs. Tobin Clark.

Mr. McCormick is the brother of Misses Margaret and Mary McCormick and Mr. Henry McCormick and the nephew of Mrs. Samuel G. Hatch, of Santa Barbara, and of Mr. Charles Henry, of Cincinnati.

Girl Scout officers from New York, Pennsylvania and nearby Maryland and Virginia will attend the opening performance of the "Festival of Nations" at Constitution Hall this evening. Mrs. Nicholas Brady, of New York, chairman of the national board of directors of the Girl Scouts, in town for the celebration of Better Homes Week at the Scouts Little House, is staying over the premiere.

Mrs. Lyman Delano, also of New York, chairman of the international Girl Scout committee, a niece of Mr. Frederic Delano, will be among his guests the opening night.

Mrs. Frederick H. Brooke, vice chairman of the executive board of the festival and a member of the board of directors of the Girl Scouts of the District, under whose auspices the production is being given, will entertain scout officers in her box.

Mrs. Henry H. Flather, also a member of the local scout board, has taken a box for every performance and will entertain guests. Mrs. B. Frank Cheatham, acting scout commissioner in the absence of Mrs. Gerrit S. Miller, jr., Mrs. Frederic Atherton, third deputy commissioner, and other members of the board who have been working for the festival the past three months, will be present.

Miss Richards Will Speak at Club's Affair

Staging of One-Act Plays by Mrs. Johnson Wins Praise.

The National Woman's Country Club will entertain at a club luncheon today, when Miss Janet Richards will be the guest of honor. After the luncheon she will address members and their guests in a talk which she entitles "Around the World in Sixty Minutes." It will be illustrated by a large map.

Mrs. Otto Johnson, who staged the entertainment given at the club Saturday night, when three one-act plays were presented, is being congratulated on the program, which was given with a notably professional touch. The decorations and color effects in "The Duchess Says Her Prayers" were particularly effective; "Finders Keepers" proved to be a most amusing comedy, and "The Farewell Supper," in which Mrs. Johnson herself played the leading role, was outstandingly well done.

Many dinner parties preceded the presentation of the plays. Mr. and Mrs. Walter R. Tuckermon had in their party Rear Admiral and Mrs. Mark L. Bristol, Mrs. Newlands Johnston, Mrs. Butler Ames, Commander and Mrs. Hickey, Mr. Eugene Scallan, of the South African Legation, and Mr. Ralph W. Hill.

Others noted among these in various dinner parties were Mr. and Mrs. Fulton Lewis, Col. and Mrs. Otto Johnson, Miss Florence Ward, Mr. and Mrs. James E. Hughes, Mr. and Mrs. Effingham Townsend and Mrs. Carl A. Droop.

Mrs. C. H. Elliott and daughter, Mrs. Moncure Berg, have returned from Vicksburg, Miss., where they were guests of Lieut. and Mrs. H. D. Vogel. Mrs. Vogel was formerly Miss Loreine Elliott.

A NEW musical instrument was introduced during a program over WGY, Schenectady, last week. "A pipeless organ compressed into a box about the size of a crate of oranges," is the way it is described by a WGY official. It is capable of the full tone of organs of the type used now in broadcasting studios and motion-picture houses, despite its compact form.

In this electrical musical instrument are eight thyratron bulbs which are made to produce eight different alternating current frequencies, related to each other as are the notes in the octave of the major scale in music. While only eight notes are used in the organ, the half-notes can be included as well as added octaves by adding another tube circuit for each additional note.

The keyboard is a toy piano. The output of the tubes is connected to a loudspeaker. The sound is instantaneous with the depression of the keys. Both the volume and the tone may be varied by controls on top of the toy piano. The loud speaker has regulators for volume and tone control, with both wood-wind and brass effects available.

PART of the ceremonies inaugurating Mayor Cermak will be broadcast from Chicago tonight (WRC, 10:30 p. m.). There will be an address by Senator-elect J. Hamilton Lewis.

A novelty German importation entitled "Won't You Dance the Next Tango With Me?" will be presented by Underwood & Underwood's singing violins during the program tonight (WRC, 9:45 p. m.) This unusual local ensemble of four violins with a piano may become a network feature, having received favorable comment following a New York audition last week.

The American soprano, Grace Moore, will sing seven songs, accompanied by Wilfred Pelletier's 32-piece orchestra, tonight (WMAL, 7:30 p. m.). These include "I'll See You Again;" Massenet's "Ouvre Tes Yeux Bleus;" "The Lovely Hour," "By the Bend of the River," and "Carry Me Back to Old Virginny."

ONE of the first of the few soloists to appear with the Philco Symphony Orchestra this year will be Helen Corbin Heinl, Washington pianist. She will play a suite never before heard on the radio with Howard Barlow's 60-piece orchestra over a coast-to-coast network of Columbia stations tomorrow night at 8:30 o'clock, including WMAL, in Washington.

Mrs. Heinl will present the final movement of Manuel de Falla's brilliant suite for piano and orchestra, "Nights in the Gardens of Spain," a composition full of changing melodies and picturesque rhythm. While most pianists appearing with symphony orchestras play concertos in which the piano is a sole instrument, the De Falla work introduces the piano as a leading voice of the orchestral ensemble.

Making one of his seldom microphone appearances, Efrem Zimbalist will be guest artist during a concert Tuesday night (WJZ network, 8 o'clock). He will play Kreisler's "Caprice Viennois" and "Tambourin Chinois."

HONORING David Belasco and Frank Gillmore, of Actors Equity, a group of Broadway stars will gather for a dinner in their honor tomorrow night (WRC, 11 o'clock).

An afternoon program for the housewife without a single "household hint" is promised in the new two-a-week series, beginning tomorrow (WMAL, 1 p. m.).

Celebrating the emperor's birthday, a two-way broadcast between Japan and the United States will take place on Wednesday morning (WRC, 8:15 o'clock). Baron Shidehara, foreign minister, will speak from Japan, while Secretary of State Stimson will send greetings from Washington.

Bebe Daniels, screen star, will be guest soloist in the Pleasure Hour Wednesday night (WJZ network, 8:30 o'clock).

It has been announced that Amos 'n' Andy will broadcast from the New York studios for two weeks, beginning May 1, while making personal appearances at the New York and Brooklyn Paramount theaters.

CHICAGO listeners are getting their fill of baseball these days. With seven stations carrying play-by-play accounts of the Cubs and Sox baseball games, KYW is the only major station from which matinee listeners can hear a bit of music, comedy or other entertainment.

Jane INTERPRETS the MODE

Agnes Drecoll fastens the skirt of the dress in lightweight blue wool low on hips. White pique vest and cuffs complete the costume.

New York, April 26.

AND every once in a while women are menaced by them, but the menace has always been short-lived—and after a while women just forget all about them. Trousers, of course! And this time they're more than a mere menace, because they're becoming more and more popular. And I'm not referring to pyjamas, either, because they're not news any more, but to the trousers and trousered effects which are not only establishing themselves for public evening affairs, but are actually creeping into the daytime mode. For the idea seems to be to make them as feminine and lovely as possible. In fact every effort is made to conceal the fact that they are trousers! Each leg is clothed in enough material to make a sizeable skirt. And the mystery, my dear, is why all the trouble is gone to in making the skirt a divided one and then all the extra trouble in making the division inconspicuous. Sometimes each leg is covered by a full circle of material so that you'd have to be addicted to adagio waltzing if you wanted the world to know that you are actually wearing trousers!

* * * *

One thing that keeps today's lovely ladies so very lovely is that they know how to relax—completely—between their dashes off for this and that. It is no secret to them that one of the best aids in this direction is a pair of lounging pyjamas—and presentable ones, at that—in which they can spend their precious moments of rest, comfortable not only in the pyjamas themselves, but in the knowledge that if that unexpected guest did pop in they were becomingly clad as well. You just can't imagine how utterly blissful it is to have plenty of pyjamas, you'll be surprised when I tell you how inexpensive it is to own 'em. In order to make them come within the reach of all, I figured out a way to make them out of just a little bit of extra material——but I'm way ahead of myself. Better sit right down and send off that stamped, self-addressed envelope for this week's leaflet to the Dare Department of The Washington Post, for it tells all about these pyjamas, that aren't just pyjamas after all, but a third part of a complete street suit, that is made out of the same material, and uses the same jacket, blouse and accessories as your street suit does. And it's all so easy to do!

* * * *

I've hinted, o-o-o-oh so softly, that the waistline is getting a wee bit lower, now haven't I? So I just couldn't resist this golden opportunity to sketch for you this trim, tailored morning dress of Agnes Drecoll, for it certainly does do a little more than hint at just such a lower waistline, and charmingly! It's made of lightweight wool, blue, with a white pique vest that shows through two square openings in the waist, and white pique cuffs buttoned snugly with square white buttons. The skirt, straight and slender in outline, has an inverted pleat in the front to give the needed fullness for walking. Altogether, this is one of THOSE frocks—and if a lowered waist line brings with it other such delightful dresses, let it come, say we! Just by way of proving that the normal high waistline isn't going to be abandoned in a hurry, see how subtly this house has nipped in the bodice. Wei-l-l-l, the more waistlines the merrier, evidently!

* * * *

Red and silver big beads and little ones form this extremely decorative necklace! And what could be more piquant as an accessory for the blue-and-white dress I have sketched for you today?

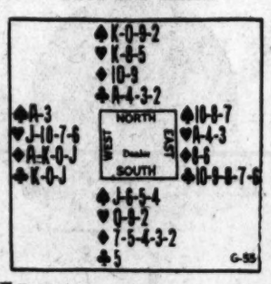
WORK ON BRIDGE

WAYS AND MEANS.



IF the above hand were dealt at Auction Bridge, South would pass and West would bid one No Trump which would be followed by three passes.

The hand was played at eleven tables of Progressive Contract. At every table, after South's pass West bid three No Trumps and secured the contract.

Every North led the Deuce of Spades and West, counting four Spades in each opposing hand, had no reason to hold up his Ace. He had eight sure tricks, with an easy game if the Clubs could be established and unblocked. At every table West led the Jack of Clubs to the second trick, hoping that his opponents could be tricked into holding up the Ace until the third round, thus unblocking dummy's Ten and Nine which could be cashed by using the Heart Ace as an entry. The Jack of Clubs won, and every Declarer hopefully led his Queen.

At three tables North figured that he had one more Club than West, and saw that dummy had but one re-entry. He therefore ducked the first three rounds of Clubs and held his Ace to block dummy's remaining two Clubs. But this little gift was all Declarer needed for game—three tricks in Clubs, four in Diamonds and one in each major.

At the other eight tables, North marked West with the King-Queen remaining when the Jack of Club won, and blocked dummy's suit by playing the Ace on the second round. At four of these eight tables, North decided to win his three Spade tricks, and then try to kill dummy's re-entry by leading the King of Hearts, hoping South could stop game with a Diamond or Heart trick. West fooled this scheme by discarding the King of Clubs on the third round of Spades, unblocking the Clubs in East's hand.

The game was saved at only four tables where North played the Ace of Clubs on the second round of that suit, and immediately led the King of Hearts on which East played the Ace—his only re-entry. With East's Clubs blocked, Declarer could not help losing three tricks in Spades, one in Hearts and one in Clubs.

YOUR NAME — WHAT DOES IT MEAN?

By HARRY A. DEFERRARI, Ph.D.

THE family name "Coombes" (also written "Coombs," "Coombes" "Combs") occurs with great frequency throughout Great Britain. It is of Celtic origin, and means "the hollow." In most cases it has reference to a hollow in a hillside. A great many British place-names are based on this word because people took advantage of the protection offered by such hollows to make settlements. This family name was generally given because of a former residence in such a place. However, there is evidence that in some cases this name is derived from the old English "camb," meaning "the ridge," and likewise indicates an original place of residence. A few of the many instances of this name in thirteenth century English records are John in le Coumbe, Gilbert ate Cumbe, John ate Cumbe, Roger de al Cumbe and John de la Coumbe. In Scotland the various forms of this name may frequently be traced back to several slightly different Scottish-Gaelic names all of which means "the son of Thomas." These Scottish names were introduced into Ireland before the end of the sixteenth century. The personal name "Thomas" is ultimately of Hebrew origin, and means "the twin."

The family name "Compton," is derived from the Anglo-Saxon "Cumbtun." It means "the combe-estate," that is, "the estate near the hollow," and obviously indicates an original place of residence. A great many villages and settlements throughout England are called "Compton." As usual, a former residence in one of those places has frequently given rise to the family name. A few of the many instances of this name in thirteenth century English records are Edith de Compton, Nicholas de Compton, Richard de Comton and Bartholomew de Compton.

Indoor and Outdoor Gardens

By JANE LESLIE KIFT

CHOOSING NEW VARIETIES.

IF yours is a new garden, and perhaps your first garden, use plants with unusually striking or variegated foliage with caution. Remember that annuals are like old friends, "tested and true." We want them. They give quick results and pay large dividends, but they must have water and sunshine. So if yours is a shady garden, plant only a small number of annuals and choose these with care. Tell your dealer you must have shade lovers. There are very few shade lovers among the annuals.

Blue flowers are among the "patricians of the border," probably so named because there are so few of them. You know that the reds and yellows predominate, but, both being warm colors, we welcome the blue tvarieties. So be sure to plant some ageratum, larkspur, cornflowers and lupines.

Do not overlook the zinnias, "gayer and gladder than tomorrow." You will want these to arrange in low pewter or ivory pottery bowls for house decoration. Consider the decorative possibilities of the hollyhock and the quaintly delicate foxgloves ano Canterbury bells, the old-fashioned poetic flower that seems like a swinging echo of the days of long ago.

And a garden without roses would be "Hamlet with Hamlet left out." Roses, however, demand care, so consider the time you can give them before planting.

The first months of gardening are months of adventure, which later develop into tragedies or successes. To prevent tragedy and assure success you must pay attention to details. Never be afraid, when making a purchase for your garden, to ask questions. If you are buying a fertilizer, find out why a certain make is better than some other which costs less. Do not buy two implements which have the same purpose, rather find out the good points of each and select the best. Purchase seed from reliable seedhouses who value their reputation.

Study the cultural notes in the catalogues and on the seed envelopes, then follow the suggestions given in every particular. Do not be governed entirely by the pictures in the books but rather consider whether your garden will measure up to the requirements listed. If it does not, choose some other variety.

(Copyright, 1931.)

All readers' questions on growing and care of indoor and outdoor flowers and floral decorations for social functions will be answered by Miss Kift, directly in this column if addressed in care of The Washington Post, or directly to readers if a self-addressed, stamped envelope is supplied.

What Today Means to You

By MARY BLAKE

"TAURUS."

IF April 27 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 8:45 a. m. to 10 a. m., from 1 p. m. to 2:30 p. m. and from 7 p. m. to 8:15 p. m. The danger hours are from 3:30 p. m. to 5 p. m. and from 10 p. m. to 11:45 p. m.

The astrological influences on this date will seem to heighten emotions, and paralyze action, and much will be said and thought, but little will be done, in a material sense. Something will occur, which will act as an "eye opener." Plans will be begun for future development.

The child born on this April 27 will be a born hustler, and will develop into a single-handed fighter and a hard worker. It will be outspoken, honest, fiery tempered, and a good mixer. Strong in its likes and dislikes, it will make many friends, and not a few enemies.

If born under the influences in force on an April 27, you are an extremely solid and practical being. As a Taurean, you are slow, plodding, patient, enduring, persistent and matter-of-fact. You lack the imagination to become a trail blazer, but you make a most devoted follower, and a courageous one, of your leader. You have an indefatigable spirit, and you even make overdrafts on your energy and physical strength.

You are pretty well master of your emotions, and although it takes a great deal to arouse your anger, it can be kindled into a white and scorching flame. It is difficult for you to swallow an injustice, or to remain passive when others are treated wrongly.

You "get there" through your perseverance, more than your brilliancy of mind. You are a slow deliberate thinker, and you seldom make a move without carefully studying the "pros" and "cons." You are suited, if a man, for callings in which the handling of money is concerned, such as banking, stockbroking, cashierig and other pursuits involving the manipulation of figures.

You have a most reserved nature, and are rather difficult to know. You are very popular amongst your friends, and you are a most loyal being. It would be well for you to marry one born under the sign of Virgo or Cancer, to insure mental and physical sympathy with your mate.

Successful people born April 27:
Gideon Lee, leather merchant.
Samuel F. B. Morse, inventor.
Ulysses S. Grant, eighteenth President of the United States.
Victor Harris, composer and conductor.
Howard Seymour Borden, merchant.

Hillig and Hoirlis Are Seeking Information on Flight to Denmark.

last night. Hoirlis, at that time, was flying in Liberty, and engaged Dr. Hillig to make some aerial pictures. Hoirlis casually mentioned his dream to fly to his home in Copenhagen, and Mr. Hillig immediately became an enthusiastic collaborator in the scheme.

Mr. Hillig wants the flight to include a trip to his native land, Germany. After leaving Denmark the two fliers propose to continue to England, France and Germany.

"I want to be the first man in the United States to fly to his native country," Mr. Hoirlis explained last night.

"And I," said Mr. Hillig, "am going for pleasure and adventure and to put the town of Liberty on the map, and for the glorification of the United States."

As a photographer in Liberty for the past 39 years, Mr. Hillig has made a fair income, sufficient money, at any rate, to finance the trip. He feels he owes the town something. He is 55 years old and unmarried. Mr. Hoirlis is 29 years old.

The flight to Denmark will include a daring jump over 1,950 miles of water after the take-off from Roosevelt Field, N. Y. There will be 2,400 miles of water to cover. Mr Hoirlis estimates that the flight will take 28 hours before they alight at their goal, Kastrup government airport, near Copenhagen

Although Mr. Hillig has had but a few hours' actual piloting experience, he expects to be experienced enough to relieve Mr. Hoirlis at the controls by the time the long hop takes place. He first flew as a photographer twelve years ago with the Gordon Circuit at Liberty, crashing the second time he went up. He gained newspaper prominence in 1929, when he had a $125,000 attachment placed on the Graf Zeppelin when it reached Lakehurst, N. J., at the end of its world flight.

Mr. Hoirlis has had four years' experience as a transport flier. Ever since he suggested the Denmark trip to Mr. Hillig they have been in the air constantly, testing their plane. These trials have included flights over the ocean and a trip to Florida in March, when they stopped over for a brief rest in Washington. In none of these flights have they experienced engine trouble and they have complete confidence in their plane.

Because of bad flying conditions yesterday they came to Washington by automobile, accompanied by Dewey A. Borden and Dr. Carlisle Wright, both of Liberty. They were the guests here of George H. Lynch, of 2928 Forty-fourth place northwest. The fliers and their friends held a lengthy conference last night to complete details for their application to Federal authorities today.

BUDGET IS AWAITED EAGERLY IN BRITAIN

illness. Even the chancellor's iron will may not be sufficient to stand the physical strain of a long analysis of the government's financial affairs, and, should he tire, help would be close at hand.

To this tense situation Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald has added a final dash of mystery by departing from the traditional parliamentary procedure for the House of Commons next week. This is to deal with other business which might arise out of the budget. The consensus of observers is that British landlords have every reason to be nervous about what the budget holds in store for them, for it is said that taxation of land values will be the central theme of Snowden's program. If this prediction comes true other aspects of the budget are expected to be humdrum.

However, new land taxes would be a signal for opposing parliamentary forces to gird for battle in another phase of Labor's campaign against "landlordism."

The chancellor has refused to use a special high chair for tomorrow's speech and has waved aside all other considerations of his physical weakness, declaring that he will stand as customary to deliver his message. The speech will start about 3:45 p. m. and is expected to last a little longer than an hour. This would mean that the chancellor would announce any new measures before the stock exchange closes at 5 p. m. Since this is contrary to precedent, the assumption is the budget is not likely to contain proposals seriously affecting the commodity market.

Snowstorms Hit Midwest States

Cold Weather Brings Fear to Growers of Fruit; Freeze Predicted.

Chicago, April 26 (U.P.).—Weather so freakish that it combined snow flurries with apple blossoms in the Midwest tonight caused Government forecasters to predict thermometer readings hovering on the freezing mark by morning.

Veritable snowstorms pelted the upper Great Lakes regions; frost descended upon green buds in the Chicago area, while farther south the abnormally cold weather brought grave apprehension to fruit growers, whose trees were in full bloom.

The snow flurries in Chicago were so light that the Weather Bureau took no cognizance of them, Forecaster C. A. Donnel said in predicting "continued cold" weather.

Illinois Political Chief Killed by Speeding Car

Chicago, April 26, (A.P.).— George William Johnson, 73, Moline, Ill., merchant and Republican political leader, was struck and killed by a speeding automobile early today as he left the Edgewater Beach Hotel after attending the wedding of a niece. Three men and two women alleged occupants of the car are being held.

Mr. Johnson, a former State representative, was president of the Moline Furniture Co. and an official of a number of other corporations of that city.

MAY REVOLUTIONIZE MUSIC

Dr. Arthur Fickenscher, professor of music at the University of Virginia, is shown here demonstrating his recently invented polytone, which authorities say may revolutionize the world of music. The instrument, which resembles an organ, makes possible a range of differences in pitch which has previously been beyond the scope of any keyed instrument. It has been sought by musicians for ages, and will be first shown to the public at the Virginia music festival at Charlottesville, April 17.

4 DAYS YET REMAIN FOR BRIDGE ENTRIES

Applications Will Close at Midnight on Thursday; Play at Shoreham.

"What, you do not play whist?" exclaimed Talleyrand, who was one of the greatest whist players of his day. "What an enormous amount of idle time you will have on your hands when you become old."

So, too, what an excellent opportunity you bridge fans are overlooking to form additional bridge contacts, to improve your game and to have the experience of duplicate and tournament playing, if you fail to enter the first annual bridge tournament of Washington players, sponsored by The Washington Post.

Likewise you will be missing one of the social events of the season amid surroundings and appointments at the handsome New Shoreham Hotel that will be delightful. Three days yet remain in which you may file your application for entrance by filling out the blank printed daily in The Post and sending it to the bridge editor. Applications coming by mail that bear post marks not later than midnight April 30 will be listed in the form of play and the classifications requested.

Entries Will Be Notified.

Immediately after May 1, when all entries are in, the committee on arrangements will notify those who have entered as pairs and desire teammates, of the persons who will make up their team for the four sessions of team matches, two at auction and two at contract.

Those who have entered as teams of four will preserve their identity throughout the team matches, but will play as two separate pairs in the pair matches of Thursday and Friday afternoons. Pairs will remain as such and play together in all events in which they participate, whether in the pair contests or the teams of four matches.

Readjustments and reassignments in the make-up of teams from among those who have entered only as pairs or as individuals will be made as may then be requested, insofar as it is possible to do so. No adjustments or reassignments will be necessary for those who have already entered as teams of four.

Three Major Events.

Remember, there are three major events, to each of which two sessions will be devoted. Thursday and Friday afternoons will be given over to the pair matches, in which all may participate whether entered as teams, as pairs or as individuals. The play will be both in auction and in contract, according as the entrants are listed, two classes in each form.

On Thursday evening and Saturday afternoon will occur the auction team games in both classes, and on Friday evening and Saturday evening the contract team games in both advanced and intermediate classes. Participants, no matter how entered, will be entitled to take part in both the pair and the team matches in their respective forms of the game and classes and to compete for prizes in both events.

The dates are May 14, 15 and 16, and the place the new Shoreham.

What this Country Needs is

WISE BUYING

WHAT this country needs is more intelligent buying, says a Government official. How can you become an intelligent buyer? One way, he says, is by reading labels to make sure quality and weight are right. He would organize the housewives of every community into leagues of intelligent buyers, meeting regularly for exchange of buying information.

He imagines a meeting of such a club in which it is reported that store after store is asking a high price for various-sized packages of food, while one store is selling a larger package for less. Since it compares favorably with the more expensive food, the buyers' club decides to buy that brand and so teach other food dealers a lesson . . .

It is just such intelligent buying that has won for A & P so many millions of regular customers. To them, "A & P" has become a hall mark of reliability. They know that foods in A & P stores are as sound as to quality, quantity, and low prices as is humanly possible to long experience and great resources.

EXHIBIT OF BOOKS WILL OPEN TODAY

Excellence in Production Is Keynote of Collection at Printing Office.

Lovers of beauty in type, binding and general make-up of good books will have an opportunity to view a carefully selected collection of American and British volumes in Harding Hall, Government Printing Office, beginning today and continuing through May 6.

On week days the exhibit will be open from 9 o'clock in the morning until 10 o'clock in the evening, and on Saturday from 9 o'clock until noon.

The books were selected by the American Institute of Graphic Arts from 500 volumes submitted by 140 publishers, private presses, book clubs and printers. The selections were based on quality of materials and workmanship in relation to price. The books range in value from $100 and $50 to paper-backed novels at 50 cents.

The exhibit will include such varied assortments as a 50-cent collection of prize poems, 1913-29, bound in paper, designed by Elmer Adler and illustrated by Rockwell Kent; a $100 limited edition of "Leaves of Grass" and the $50 "Canterbury Tales," also illustrated by Rockwell Kent; a $30 "Tom Sawyer" and a $2 production of "The Black Crook," by Christopher Morley.

The jury that selected the books reported that novels and cheaper editions show less careful workmanship and originality this year than last year. The general standard, however, is upheld by such editions as the "Random House," "Collected Poems of Robert Frost" and the Harbor Press "Horns in Velvet," it was said.

Reaching for Purse, "Assassin" Is Beaten

Barcelona, April 26, (A.P.).—A man who was afraid his pocketbook would be stolen and reached toward his hip pocket to safeguard it was beaten today by a crowd, which thought he was attempting to assassinate President Niceto Alcala Zamora.

As the president's car approached the crowded San Jaime Plaza, the unidentified man, who was believed to be a German, made the false move. Police rescued him and took him to headquarters. He was released after he explained his action and no weapons were found.

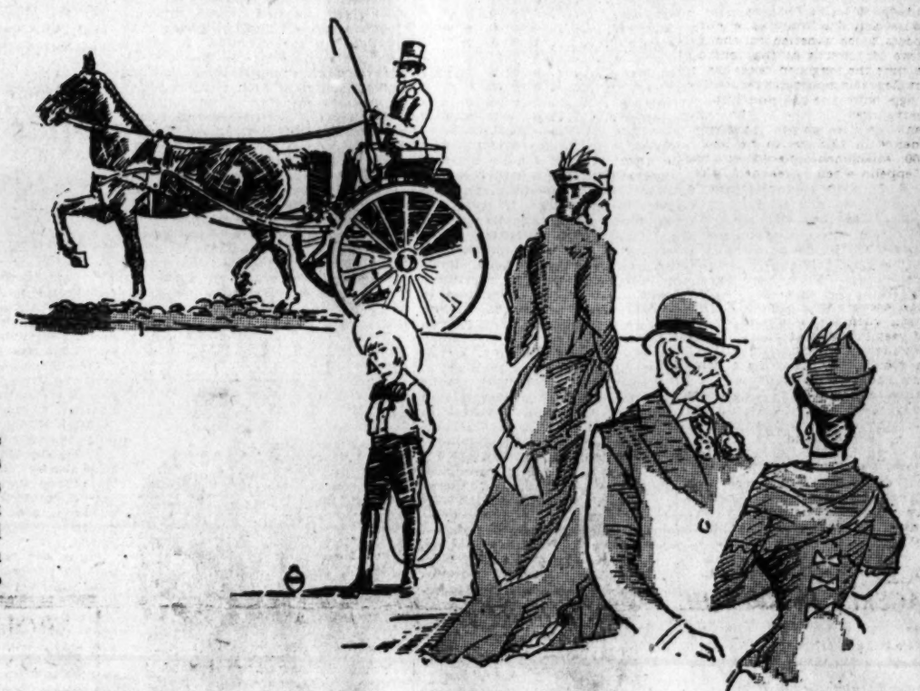
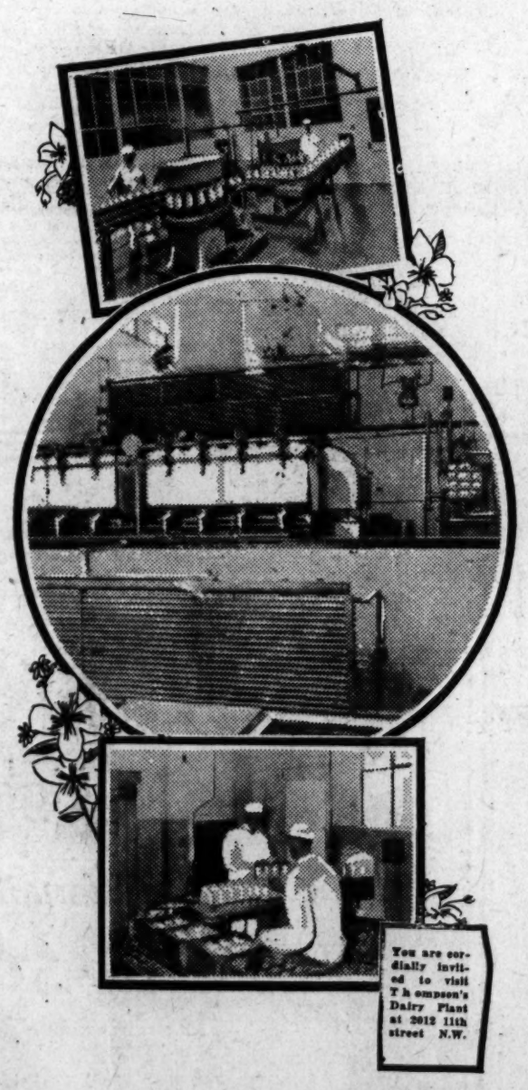
Grandma was a rosy-cheeked girl in lacey pantalettes and Washington was only a village when Thompson's Dairy was founded in 1881. Now Grandma's hair has turned to silver and Washington has become a brilliant world Capital. Throughout this half century ownership of Thompson's Dairy has remained in the Thompson family—the name has never been changed. And generation after generation, Thompson's continues to serve the same fine Washington homes.



For fifty years Thompson's Dairy has lived up to the sterling standards of Quality and Service conceived by its founders. From the beginning the Thompson creed has been to give Washington homes the finest, richest, most wholesome milk and milk products that science and skill could produce. That creed has become a cherished tradition of Thompson's Dairy and the priceless heritage of those who carry on.

Hand in hand with the growth of Washington, Thompson's Dairy has developed into one of the world's model Dairies. Thompson's Dairy has always pioneered in its efforts to produce richer and purer milk by adopting the newest scientific methods and installing the most modern equipment, regardless of cost. The exacting D. C. Health Dept. has recognized and rewarded these successful efforts by bestowing numerous coveted honor ratings upon Thompson's Dairy time after time.



THOMPSON'S IS A 100% WASHINGTON INDUSTRY

Thompson's Dairy is truly Washington's very own Dairy. Thompson's has always been 100% Washington owned and operated. Thompson's has never been connected with any other dairy institution in Washington or elsewhere—its high standards of quality have never been changed. Gehrig Ruled Out on Drive Into Stands, Passes Lary; Fischer Fans 10 Batters

Bluege Gets Homer on Texas Leaguer as Cooke Is Injured.

High Wind Mars Play; Nats Get 5 in 5th; Spencer Chased.

By FRANK H. YOUNG.

JOHNNY JONES' circus is heading this way, but when it arrives it will not give fans as many laughs during its whole stay as some 14,000 baseball fans received in watching the Nationals hand the Yankees a 9-to-7 defeat yesterday at Griffith Stadium.

Perhaps it was the conditions under which the game started, it being delayed fifteen minutes because of a heavy rain which was followed by a strong wind, which seemed to send both players and umpires "haywire." But, whatever the reason, one of the weirdest affairs seen on a diamond within the memories of the oldest inhabitants resulted.

First off the bat came one of those plays which Babe Herman has made famous in Brooklyn—and which is supposed to have been copyrighted. After Lary had coaxed a walk with one dead and Cooke had struck out, Gehrig poled one into the stands in deepest center. The scorers immediately started jotting down a homer for "Columbia Lou" and two runs to the Yankees' credit, when Lary was seen to tag third and then to go toward his own dugout instead of touching the plate. Umpire McGowan, of course, then ruled him out for technically being passed on the bases by Gehrig. Thus Gehrig lost his homer and was credited with only a triple. This third out retired the side, and the Yankees lost the runs, which, as things turned out, represented their margin of defeat.

Ball Bounds Back To Rice.

Gehrig's drive bounded directly back from the stands to Outfielder Harry Rice, who hustled the ball back to the infield for no reason at all. Larry, as far as any one can figure, must have thought the ball had to be caught. He probably has been told to quit thinking in the future.

From then on, everything which can be shown in a ball game, except a balk, happened. In the third, the usually reliable Cronin let a Texas leaguer drop for a hit, while the home half netted the freakiest homer on record and added the only touch of tragedy to the otherwise ludicrous performance.

Bluege sent a Texas leaguer to right and Dusty Cooke came in fast in the hope of making a shoe-string catch. His spikes caught in the turf and he went down on his right shoulder. With the ball less than a yard away from him, he lay in a semiconscious condition while Gehrig raced out and retrieved the ball. Meanwhile, Bluege circled the bases.

Teammates Rush To Cooke.

Then play was halted while the whole Yankee team rushed to Cooke's relief. He was helped off the field and later rushed to a hospital, where an X-ray photograph was taken. It showed no broken bones, but his right collarbone was displaced, several ligaments torn, and he will be lost to the club for at least two weeks. This robbed the Yanks of three of their five fly-chasers in the last four games, Ruth being hurt last Wednesday and Hoag last Friday. Ruffing went to relieve Coooke and, in order to save his pitching arm, added to the clownish performance by being afraid to make fast returns of balls hit in his sector.

Later in the game, Cronin was credited with a triple when Byrd fell down while chasing the hgh fly and Manush was saved from a "homer" by the happening for, thinking there were two out instead of only one, he was rounding third at the time. There were two collisions, one between Byrd and Lary adding a fluke double to the fluke homer already credited Bluege, while Spencer went all the way to first base to knock a foul out of Judge's hands.

Another time, Fischer took a grounder, made motions to throw to several bases and then got the ball to Judge too late to nip the runner. These motions seemed to get the Yankee base-runners up in the air for, after things had quieted down, Judge discovered that two of them were perched on third and rushed all the way across the diamond to touch one.

Umpire Connolly Joins Comedy.

Here Umpire Connolly showed the effects of the mental strain, for he first called the wrong man out and then called him back from the Yankee bench and put him on the sack again.

To add to all of this were more scratch hits than ever again will be seen in any one game, with balls dropping all around the feet of the fielders. Two Nats were wild-pitched home, by the way, while Umpire McGowan had to get in the picture by staging a mind-reading act. He benched Catcher Spencer for what he was thinking and for his darting for the bench in the ninth, thinking that Chapman had struck out, ending the game. This was called a ball, and Spencer ordered out for trying to show up "his honor."

Fred Marberry started on the hill for the Nats and he had trouble getting his pitching machinery functioning. After the Yanks' fancy baserunning had cost them two runs in the first and robbed Gehrig of a homer, they became two up in the next round on Lazzeri's double and chapman's four-baser. This time both runners touched all bases, according to Hoyle.

When Combs opened the third with a single, Carl Fischer went to Marberry's relief and Lary's single, which

HADLEY DUE TO OPPOSE YANKEES

McCarthy Plans to Use Pennock Today; Liska May Go.

MCCARTHY'S Yankees will be in our midst again this afternoon and it is safe to say that both they and the Nationals got all of the poor baseball out of their systems yesterday and that something resembling the class which may be expected of championship contenders may be looked for.

Herb Pennock, the veteran southpaw, is due to do the hurling for the Yankees while Manager Walter Johnson indicated last night that he will use Irving (Bump) Hadley, who pitched to Chapman to end yesterday's game. Bump was particularly effective against the New Yorkers last year, being credited with four victories as against but one defeat.

Nats Won 18 of 22 Last Year.

Washington, it will be remembered, beat the Yankees in 18 of 22 games last year and none of these triumphs and three of the losses were charged to the "Squire of Kennet Square." He already has won two games this year, having shown a return to his best form, which means that the Nats will have to put their best foot forward if they beat him today.

The error charged to Catcher Spencer yesterday was hard to take. In the ninth, he started chasing Lazzeri's foul which would have ended the game. The wind caught the ball and the catcher, not being called off by any of his mates, who acted like so many mutes, kept right on after it. Meanwhile, Judge was waiting for it only a short distance from first and the ball was dropped when Roy crashed into him.

Liska May Not Return To Nats.

If Pitcher Adolph Liska does not get his salary wing cured by the surgeon at Lincoln, Nebr., where he now is having it treated, he may not return to the Washington Club, President Clark Griffith admitted last night. Apparently the Nat owner is tired fooling with Liska, and he is now getting his last chance.

When asked when the young subway hurler was expected to return, the Nat owner said: "You never can tell. I told him to have his arm treated at Lincoln, where he went at his own expense, to work out with the Lincoln Club, and then to let me know whether or not he had recovered sufficiently to pitch. He's on a salary status now and will be until I find out whether or not he got his arm cured on his visit to Nebraska."

In case Liska can not get his arm in shape, it is not known just what will happen to him, as the Nat owner declined to commit himself other than to intimate that the player's salary would stop.

Liska has been the Nats' original hard-luck pitcher. His first season saw him off to a good start, but he lost several well-pitched games which he deserved to win. Then he turned an ankle, later injured the other one, and, when he finally got back in the line-up, appeared to have lost everything. Last season, although the ALEXANDRIA, Va., April 26.—Raking the defense of the Takoma Tigers with a withering fire of base hits, the St. Mary's Celtics defeated the 1930 Capital City League champions ..y 19 to 4 here this afternoon at Baggett's Park, the victory being the Green and Gold's third of the year.

Fifteen hits were obtained off the two Tiger slabmen with "Buddy" Goodwin and Art Ludlow sharing the spotlight on the offensive. A home run, triple and single in four efforts were Goodwin's contributions, while Ludlow kicked in with a triple, double and single.

The Celtics' sterling mound combination of "Doc" Dreifus and "Reds" Weaver, who struck out eighteen Army all Star batters in a six-inning game last week, worked in fine fashion again today despite chilling cross winds which made it difficult for them to find the plate at times.

Dreifus and Weaver held the Maryland tossers to six scattered hits, while the former struck out seven batters and Weaver fanned eight.

Hume Springs A. C. opened its diamond campaign with a 10 to 9 triumph over the Columbia Engine Company, Alexandria amateur unlimited champs last summer, here this afternoon on Richmond Haydon field.

Del Ray A. C. idled insofar as actual competition was concerned yesterday. Its game with the Wheaton (Md.) A. C. was postponed because of early rainfall and cold winds. Members of the squad went through a light workout, however, to keep in trim.

Charley Deuterman's Virginia White Sox were rained out of their battle with the Washington Red Sox at Baileys Cross Roads yesterday afternoon. Morning rains left the field a sea of mud. It is expected that the contest will be played on the same field next Sabbath.

Chisox Given 3 Hits As Tigers Win, 8-4

Chicago, April 26 (A.P.).—Vic Sorrell and Charlie Sullivan allowed the Chicago White Sox just three hits this afternoon, and the Detroit Tigers won the opener of the series by a score of 8 to 4, despite the fact that the pair handed out ten bases on balls. Vic Fraser started for the Hose and likewise walked ten, bringing the total of passes for the game to 20.

The game was long and drawn out, the first three innings requiring an hour and a quarter. The Tigers pounded Frasier and Faber for eleven hits and Jim Moore finished up. Stone pounded out his fifth home run of the year in the seventh inning, to break a tie and give the Bengals the winning run. It gave Stone a tie with Hornsby, of the Cubs, for home run honors so far this season. He also knocked a triple. Mel Simons got two of the three Hose hits.

KLAUER SPRINGS SURPRISE IN PENN RELAYS

Fred Klauer, an added starter from Colgate, furnished a surprise in the Pennsylvania relay carnival, Philadelphia, by finishing second in an original field of seven in the decathlon. He is shown here (right) winning the 100 meters in record-equaling time of 11.2 seconds. Otto B. Schoenfeld, Cornell, was second and Barney Berlinger, Pennsylvania, third.

Jones and Diegel, in Rally, Square Coast Golf Match

LOS ANGELES, April 26 (A.P.)—Bobby Jones and Leo Diegel squared their exhibition 18-hole charity golf match today with Mortie and Olin Dutra by launching a determined comeback on the last 5 holes. The match ended with the teams on even terms.

Two thousand fans waded and slid over the muddy course to see Jones play a rather indifferent game and miss the chance to win the match on the eighteenth green when his 5-foot putt was wide of the cup.

The Dutra brothers turned the nine 1 up and increased their lead to 2 in the tenth. Jones took a birdie 4 on the fourteenth to decrease the lead by half, and then he and Diegel parred the sixteenth, squaring the match.

Jones was short on virtually every putt on the outgoing nine. His Agua from the tee, while the methodical Caliente partner, Diegel, was wild Dutra brothers turned the first nine in 36 each—2 over par. Diegel had a 37 and Bobby a 38.

The Dutras went out from the statr to take a 2-up lead, but Bobby and Leo squared the business at the sixth. Olin dropped an 18-foot putt on the seventh for a birdie 2 for a lead. The next two holes were halved.

Pirates Beat Cards, 1-0, Scoring Without Hit

St. Louis April 26 (A. P.).—Scoring one run in the sixth inning without the assistance of a hit, the Pittsbugh Pirates gave the St. Louis Cardinals their first home defeat of the home season here this afternoon 1 to 0. Two bases on balls off Hallahan, losing Cardinal hurler, a stolen base and then a long fly producing the only run of the game spelled defeat for the National League champions. It was the first game of the series. Rain and cold weather had kept the Cardinals idle since the opener here last Wednesday.

PHOENIX ROUTS CUBS.

"Wee Willie" Glascoe's Phoenix-Blue Coal nine made merry at the expense of the Cubs yesterday, when the former routed their opponents, scoring a 25-1 victory. Love, with five hits, two of them good for a round trip, in five times at bat, was the big gun for the coal dealers.

Hole-in-One Recorded By Attorney General

Attorney General William D. Mitchell yesterday became a member of the hole-in-one club when he scored an ace at Burning Tree Course. Mr. Mitchell, playing with Judge Richard S. Whaley, of the Court of Claims, and Representative James Parker, of New York, made the perfect shot with a No. 3 iron on the third hole, 148 yards from the tee.

Cubs Win Easily, 3-1, As Root Baffles Reds

Cincinnati April 26 (A. P.).—The Chicago Cubs defated the Reds, 3 to 1, here today in the first game of the series, plastering three Cincinnati pitchers for thirteen hits while Charlie Root held the Red Legs to six scattered blows. About 6,500 fans braved the cold weather. Flags on the field were at half-staff in honor of "Garry" Herrmann, long time president of the Reds, who died Saturday. The game between the Reds and Cubs on Tuesday was postponed because of Herrmann's funeral.

Alabama Poly Tops Dixie College League

Atlanta, Ga., April 26 (By A. P.).—With eight victories and two defeats, Alabama Polytechnic Institute today led the Dixie Colloge Baseball League after a week of spectular play which saw the second place Florida team of a week ago lose five of its six games and drop into fifth position.

Oglethorpe's wins over Florida and Mercer boosted the peteris into secplace.

CAPITAL HEIGHTS WINS.

Playing in a veritable quagmire, the Capital Heights A. C., entrants in The Post's Capital City League, took a slugging bee from the Seabrook A. C. on the latter's field yesterday, 15 to 11. Hutchinson and Varnell, who shared mound work for the Heights nine, were not very effective, but great support on the part of their teammates carried them through to the victory. Johnson was best at bat for the losers, while Miles collected a quartet of bingles for Manager Link's nine.

ROSENBLOOM NOT RISKING HIS TITLE

Is Only Champ to See Action This Week; Fights Manley.

NEW YORK, April 26 (A.P.).—Following laast week's brief flurry of excitement out Chicago way, when Tony Canzoneri flattened Jackie Berk for several assorted titles, the boxing game was scheduled to settle back into its accustomed peace and quiet for the ensuing week.

Champions, all but one of them, will be conspicuous by their absence from the ring wars, and most of the outstanding pretenders face a week's rest. Maxie Rosenbloom, the light heavyweight flag bearer, is scheduled to face the veteran George Manley at Denver Thursday night, but his title will not be at stake.

Young Corbett, Fresco welterweight, and Tommy Herman, of Chicago, will meet in a 10-rounder at San Francisco Friday night that promises action.

Benny Touchstone, Detroit, and Walter Pickerd, Indianapolis, engage in a heavyweight tilt at Indianapolis Tuesday.

The week's national schedule includes:

MONDAY—At Oakland, Jose Santa, Portugal, vs. Jack Beasley, Oakland, heavyweights, 10; at Philadelphia, Harry Blitman, Philadelphia, vs. Lou Massey, Philadelphia, featherweights, 10; Pete Latzo, Scranton, vs. Matt Adgie, Philadelphia, middleweights, 10; at Canton, Ohio, Roy Williams, Chicago, vs. Patsy Perroni, Canton, lightheavies, 10; at Dayton, Mike Dundee vs. Mike Kelly, lightweights, 10.

TUESDAY—At Indianapolis, Walter Pickerd, Indianapolis, vs. Benny Touchstone, Detroit, heavyweights, 10; at San Jose, Calif., Armand Emanuel, Los Angeles, vs. Bud Doyle, San Jose, heavyweights, 10; at Los Angeles, Jude Zuniga, Glendale, vs. Speedy Dado, Los Angeles, featherweights, 10.

WEDNESDAY—At Seattle, Abie Israel, Seattle, vs. Canto Pobleto, Pasadena, bantamweights, 6; at Cleveland, Madison Dix, San Francisco, vs. Gorilla Jones, Akron, welterweights, 6.

THURSDAY—At Cincinnati, Freddy Miller, Cincinnati, vs. Roger Bernard, Detroit, lightweights, 10; at Denver, George Manley, Denver, vs. Maxie Rosenbloom, New York, light heavyweights, 10 (nontitle).

FRIDAY—At San Francsico, Young Corbett, Fresno, vs. Tommy Herman, Chicago, welterweights, 10; at Hollywood, Cecil Payne, Louisville, vs. Joe Soldivar, Los Angeles, lightweights, 10.

Ruth to Play Thursday, He Says

Babe, Leaving Hospital, Would Join Club Against A's.

Slugger Must Rest for Two Weeks, Says His Physician.

BOSTON, April 26 (A.P.).—Babe Ruth left the hospital and went home today, vowing he would be back in the line-up next Thursday, when the New York Yankees take on the champion Athletics at Philadelphia.

It appears, however, that the injured home run king is overoptimistic. Although his bruised left thigh has improved enough to warrant his removal from the Peter Bent Brigham Hospital, Dr. Francis C. Newton, who attended him, predicted it would be at least two weeks before the impatient star would be able to play any baseball.

"Ruth's rapid improvement justified his departure from the hospital," Dr. Newton said. "He has promised to go straight to his New York apartment and remain there, under the careful supervision of the New York Yankees' physician. I am certain the latter will not permit the Babe to attempt to play against the Athletics this week. It will be two weeks, at least, before his leg will be strong enough for that kind of work."

Ruth in Cheerful Mood.

Ruth was in a cheerful mood when he quit the hospital, soon after lunch. With some assistance from Mrs. Ruth, he demolished the roast chicken, the gift of Dave Shean, former Boston Braves infielder, who now is operating a market in the famous Faneuil Hall district.

After this hearty repast, the Babe was handed his sturdy walking stick, placed in a wheel chair and pushed out to the automobile of Superintendent of Police Michael H. Crowley, which carried him to the railroad station.

Another wheel chair was waiting for him at the station, as well as an army of eager reporters. They wheeled him carefully through the large crowd that gathered to see him off and then tenderly half-carried him aboard the Pullman and into his compartment. Every move was closely supervised by Mrs. Ruth.

Babe Arrives Early For Train.

Babe was not taking any chances of missing that train. He left the hospital almost an hour before its departure, and since it was only a 15-minute drive to the station, he had a long wait. He spent it conversing with the police official and his son, Paul Crowley, and several other friends.

"I'm feeling great," he told them. "The swollen area has almost disappeared and the old legs will be in shape to get me in against the Athletics in Philadelphia on Thursday."

New York, April 26 (A.P.).—Five hundred baseball fans greeted Babe Ruth, the ailing Yankee slugger, on his arrival at 8:30 o'clock tonight from Boston. Five husky policemen surrounded his wheel chair and held off the crowd as Ruth was trundled out to his waiting automobile.

HORSEMEN EXPECT QUICK RECOVERY OF EQUIPOISE

'Doing Fine,' Says Track Manager

Absence of Trainer Is Indication That Colt Improves.

Odds Rise on Whitney Ace for Derby After Graw Failure.

HAVRE DE GRACE, Md., April 26 (A.P.).—Equipoise, Preakness and Kentucky Derby favorite, beaten badly in his second start as a 3-year-old in the Chesapeake Stakes yesterday, "probably will be all right by tomorrow."

The C. V. Whitney crack, leading money horse in America as a 2-year-old, ran last in the field of five others he was expected to outclass because of a slight attack of azoturia, or kidney poisoning, according to Dr. Henry J. McCarthy, veterinarian for the Maryland tracks.

Edward Burke, manager of the Havre de Grace track, said today that Equipoise was "doing fine" and probably would be al right by tomorrow.

Dr. McCarthy examined the horse after yesterday's race and pronounced the illness azoturia. Hhe said other horses here were victims of the same malady, probably due to a sudden change in the weather.

Absence of Trainer Indicates Improvement.

Absence today from Equipoise's stable of the trainer and attendants, who had take nthe other Whitney horses to the Pimlico track, indicated, according to Burke, the illness was not considered serious.

Dr. McCarthy visited Equipoise this afternon and left the track shortly afterward.

Mr. Burke said Equipoise seemed to be in good condition yesterday as he went to the post, and broke well, but did not run, and in the back stretch was pulled up by his jockey, Albert Robertson.

Odds Soar to 5 to 1 On Equipoise.

New York, April 26 (A.P.).—As the result of the most disappointing race of his brilliant turf career, odds on C. V. Whitney's Equipoise to win the Kentucky Derby have soared to 5 to 1 with the prospect he may yield the position of favoritism to Mrs. Payne Whitney's Twenty Grand.

Following Equipoise's dismal showing in the Chesapeake Handicap at Havre de Grace, Md., Saturday, Tom Shaw, maker of the Eastern book on the Derby, immediately raised the quotations on the Whitney ace from 3 to 1 to 5 to 1. Odds on Equipoise dropped to 3 to 1 following his sensational show of speed on the opening day of the Maryland meeting.

If the condition of Eqipoise proves serious and he is thrown out of training Tenty Grand into the favorite's [illegible] said he would move position at odds of 4 to 1. Mrs. Whitney's ace now is being quoted at 6 to 1. He has not faced the barrier in a public trial as a 3-year-old, but has been turning in sensational trials at Belmont Park.

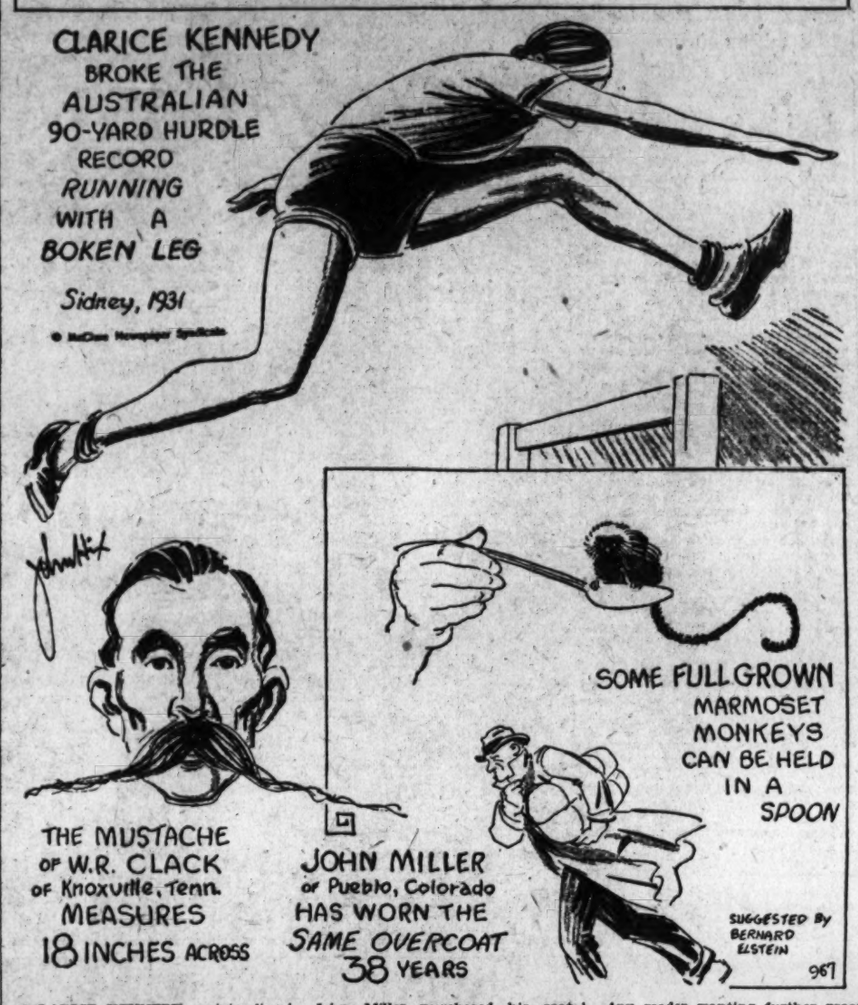
STRANGE AS IT SEEMS —By John Hix



CLARICE KENNEDY, outstanding girl athlete of Australia, established a new Australian record of 14 1-5 seconds for the 90-yard hurdles. In going over the fifth barrier Miss Kennedy's leg came in contact with the hurdle, breaking her knee cap. Despite this painful handicap, she continued her record-breaking dash, collapsing just after reaching the tape.

John Miller purchased his coat, which is made of chinchilla, in 1893 and has been wearing it ever since. Miller, who is 73 years old, says the coat has yet to see its best years, and plans to wear it for the rest of his life. After that he will pass it on to his son, who says he plans to make use of it.

Golden Gate Rated Best In Opening Pimlico Stakes

Westy's Rose Seen as Leading Contender by Snodgrass.

By J. B. SNODGRASS.

PIMLICO RACE TRACK, Md., April 26.—The scene of racing in Maryland shifts to Pimlico tomorrow where the Maryland Jockey Club will begin it's twelve-day spring session. With the exception of next Wednesday, a stake will be decided each day at Pimlico. The $50,000 added Preakness, classic of Maryland spring annuals, will be decided May 9, while the $15,000 Dixie Handicap will be run next Saturday.

Tomorrow will be Charity Day at Pimlico, proceeds from the mutuels, gate, concessions, &c., to be turned over to the unemployed and needy of this city. It will be the third charity day staged at Maryland tracks this spring. Laurel will have a charity day next fall. It is estimated that upward of $100,000 will be realized for charity through the race tracks this year.

Featuring the opening day program at Pimlico will be the $2,500 added Homebred Stakes, four and a half furlong dash for 2-year-olds. Sixteen youngsters were entered overnight in the race and of this number five have never started. Mrs. Walter M. Jeffords' GOLDEN GATE may be the winner. The well-bred son of Golden Broom and Glory Maid gave good promise in two starts at Havre de Grace. He was fourth in the Aberdeen Stakes and beat eleven highly regarded juveniles.

FIRST RACE—IRENE'S BOB made her debut in the Aberdeen Stakes last Wednesday and she turned in a good effort to finish seventh. She meets slower horses in the day's opener. THE NILE displayed high speed in her one Bowie race. She has trained well since that effort, according to Trainer Elmer Trueman.

SECOND RACE—HACKY H. is at his best right now. A repetition of his Havre de Grace races and he will be hard to beat in the second number. HOLIDAY is long overdue. If he runs his race, he will be the one to beat. ALWINGTON DOLLY was never headed in her last race at Havre de Grace, but she did not beat horses like HACKY H. and HOLIDAY. Third will have to do for her.

THIRD RACE—SUBLEVADO was the hottest kind of a tip last Thursday. He failed to make good, but probably needed that race. He is well placed in the third, a claimer for mediocre platers, and if any account at all, should score. COIN COLLECTOR'S last race was much better than the first effort he turned in this spring. More improvement can be expected. TEWSENELDA is the speed of the race, but she stops. She may hang on long enough to gain the short award.

FIFTH RACE—MAGNIFICO and PENNATE will run coupled in the betting as the C. V. Whitney entry, provided both start in the Druid Hill Purse, which will follow the feature. MAGNIFICO was a winner over good 3-year-olds at Havre de Grace. PENNATE was a better colt than MAGNIFICO last year. He will be making his 3-year-old bow here, but clockers say he is dead fit. LADY CAPULET is the one to fear. This mare is hard to guess, but if she runs her race, she will be hard to whip. COLOSSAL beat LADY CAPULET at Bowie, but this is another day and another track.

SIXTH RACE—MORSEL should be the winner of the Mount Washington Handicap, provided he has not had too much campaigning. He ran a good race in the Dixie Trial, at Havre de Grace Saturday. ROCKET GLARE has been hard at it since the spring season opened. She continues to race well nevertheless, ROCKET GLARE will be coupled with FORTUNATE YOUTH. The latter is at top now. SNOWFLAKE is reported as fit. She will likely be close up in the event the going is fast. She is a poor muddier.

SEVENTH RACE—NEALON KAY, good right now, can beat the kind he will meet in the curtain affair. All he needs is a good, strong boy on his back. ALL BLUE raced as though short last Friday. This was his first start of the year. He probably needed the race. ALL BLUE has always raced well over the Pimlico track. FAIR BILL has only to repeat his last winning effort to be close up.

CHEVY CHASE GRAYS STOP SAKS, 2-1

Chance in Hero Role As Clothiers Bow in Mound Duel.

WITH both teams performing in errorless fashion behind the airtight pitching of Chance and Spiegal, the Chevy Chase Grays scored a 2-to-1 victory over the Saks Clothiers on the Grays diamond yesterday in the best-played sandlot game recorded to date. Each pitcher granted but three hits, while Chance whiffed ten of his opponents and Spiegal turned the trick six times.

After the second inning when Chevy Chase scored their pair of runs on Knight's two-bagger to center, Spiegal settled down and blanked the suburbanites over the remainder of the route. Chance, in the meanwhile, had the Clothiers well in control until the eighth when they broke loose long enough to chalk up their lone tally.

The poor condition of the field due to rain made the task of fielding the ball difficult, but the members of both nines acquitted themselves in true big-league fashion. Both clubs are entered in the Capital City League, the Grays in the Montgomery County section and the Saks aggregation in the District section.

Record Playground Season Keeps D. C. Youngsters Busy

223 Boys' Baseball Teams, 136 Girls' Teams in Schlag and Dodge Ball in Midst of Schedules.

THE most pretentious program ever attempted by the Municipal Playground Department is now in full swing. In the boys' department 91 interplayground baseball teams have been organized in unlimited, senior, junior and midget leagues, and in the elementary schools 132 junior and senior nines are playing through schedules under the supervision of the playgrounds.

Although the girls do not have interplayground contests in the spring, leagues in schlag and dodge are organized in the elementary schools. At present there are 94 schlag teams and 42 dodge squads vieing for league titles.

The interplayground baseball games are played on Saturday, while the school matches are conducted daily after school. While an official count has not been made to date, playground officials estimate that more than 3,000 boys are engaged in organized baseball on the playgrounds at present.

With the baseball tournaments well on the way, playground authorities are now turning their attention to the annual grade school field and track meets. In all, seven individual and one city final will be held during the month of May. A slight change in the usual program will tend to increase the number of participants.

In previous years all of the meets were held at Plaza, but now that this ground has been made a part of the Capitol Plaza development, other arrangements must be made. It is planned to hold the divisional meets on grounds near the schools in each section, and, not having to go farther than walking distance, a large number of boys are expected to compete.

The scene of the city meet has not been decided as yet, but it will be held on one of the cinder paths of the city. The finals will be run off on Saturday, May 23. Dates for the division meets follow:

Columbia Heights, May 11; Georgetown, May 12; Virginia Avenue, May 13; Rosedale, May 14; Garfield, May 15; New York Avenue, May 18; Bloomingdale, May 19. Boys who are first, second and third in each event in the division meets will be awarded gold, silver and bronze buttons, respectively, while in the city meet medals will be the prizes. All divisional champions, as well as the city champion, will receive team cups from the playground department.

District A. A. U. Names Mat Tournament Dates

The first District of Columbia championship amateur wrestling tournament has been scheduled tentatively for May 13 and 14, Jim McNamara, chairman of the District A. A. U. wrestling committee, announced last night. The place for the event will be selected later.

Any amateur wrestler registered in the District of Columbia Association or a bona fide representative of a school or college within the District association territory, is eligible to compete. Registration may be obtained at the office of William E. Russell, 1503 North Capitol street.

Chairman McNamara said prospects for a large competing field are bright. He said enteries are expected from several organizations and schools such as the Y. M. C. A., Jewish Community Center, Georgetown University, Gallaudet College and Maryland University.

Old Line Nine Entertains Wolfpack

Must Beat N. C. State Today to Retain Its Tristate Lead.

G. U. Netmen in Only Other Event on D. C. College Card.

WITH first place at stake in the Tri-State League of the Southern Conference, Maryland and North Carolina State nines clash this afternoon o nthe former's diamond at College Park, beginning at 4 o'clock.. Maryland, by virtue of a double victory over V. P. I. last Saturday, gained the top rung of the ladder, but North Carolina State is only a step behind and can go to the top by winning today.

Coach Burton Shipley will entrust the Old Line pitching duties to diminutive Bill McIlwee, who has come rapidly to the fore of late with a one-hit performance against Virginia and another victory, though not so decisive, over V. P. I. i nthe first game Saturday. McIlwee is a lefthanded serving his first term of varsity baseball.

Lanning Hopes to Again Beat Maryland.

John Lanning, sophomore hurling ace of the Wolfpack, will likely be opposed to McIlwee. It was Lanning N. C., early in the season by a score who turned back Maryland at Raleigh, of 7 to 0. The invaders also boast of a star outfielder, one Duke, whom major league scouts have been closely observing.

The only other contest scheduled today for Capital collegians is the Georgetown-Hampden-Sidney tennis match to be played at Columbia Club. Hampden-Sidney will remain here for matches with George Washington tomorrow and Maryland Wednesday.

Virginia Golf Team Beats Medical College

Special to The Washington Post.

Charlottesville, Va., April 26.—Virginia's golf team, which lost only one intercollegiate match last year, opened the 1931 season yesterday by defeating the team from the Virginia Medical College by the decisive score of 15½ to 2½.

The match was played on the course of the Swannanoa Country Club, atop the Blue Ridge Mountains, under miserable weather conditions, fog and drizzling rain and high winds. In the first match, "Chick" Evans, Virginia, defeated Bill Tarrant, Medicos, 8 up, 7 to go; Brown Miller, of Washington, D. C., defeated Wayt Traynham, Medicos, 8 up, 7 to go; H. R. Kern, of Winchester, captain of the Virginia team, defeated Bob Croom, Medicos, 8 up, 7 to go. Although losing the last nine holes, Kern won the first nine, to score two points. Robert Rains, of Detroit, defeated Charles Hartwell, Medicos. The players halved the first nine holes, but Rains took the second nine and the match to score 2½ points.

In the foursomes, Capt. Kern and Miller, Virginia, defeated Tarrant and Traynham, 2 and 1, while Evans and Rains, Virginia, defeated Croom and Hartwell, 5 and 4. The hero of the contest was Evans, who negotiated the course in 75.

STOCK LOSSES HIT TRADE ACTIVITIES

Market Is Affected During Week by Reports on Building and Steel.

New York, April 26 (A.P.).—With diverse trends in industrial activity, and further sags in security and commodity prices, conservative hues colored much of the business picture during the past week.

A reversal of the recent upward trend in building activity, and further recession in steel and electric power production, were matched by reports of moderate gains in the movement of revenue freight and in automobile production, and of a higher level of activity in cotton spinning. Slight improvement in wholesale trade, somewhat larger bank clearings and in the main more favorable weather for crops, were stressed as reassuring aspects.

At the end of the week, further surveys of the steel situation indicated that the slackening of output which had been in progress since late March may be slowing down, and automotive reports expressed the hope that output may be maintained at current or a little higher levels well through the spring season. An estimate of next week's steel mill operations in the Youngstown area indicated current levels of output would be maintained. A report earlier in the week that the Ford Motor Co. was reducing its steel buying and might close down its manufacturing units for two months in the summer were discredited at the company's offices.

F. W. Dodge Corporation's report of building contracts let in the 37 States east of the Rockies for the first half of April was one of the week's less cheerful exhibits. After the substantially larger than seasonal gains in the volume of building contracted in February and March, the first half of April saw a letdown of about 9 per cent, although the normal seasonal trend would indicate further substantial gains in the current month.

The freight car loadings report for the week ended April 11 showed a gain of 9,423 cars over the previous week, somewhat larger than the seasonal upturn, but still under the like period of 173,382 cars. It was notable that the miscellaneous freight, or general merchandise classification, showed a gain of more than 10,000 cars. This classification, which is regarded as one of the best barometers of industrial activity, has lately shown curiously fitful gains every second or third week. One commentator suggests that this may reflect the hand-to-mouth, experimental character of buying by merchants.

The sagging of commodity prices was again pronounced, as shown in most index figures compiled on a weekly basis. Nevertheless, it was notable that the pace of the decline has not quickened to anything comparable to that of the first two months of the year. It has been frequently observed of late that most commodities are around levels at which further drastic drops are extremely unlikely, although no complete reversal of the trend can be expected with the general industrial activity at such low levels.

Gold Flow Held U. S. Trade Help

Influx to Increase Resumption of Lending to Foreign Nations, Is Belief.

New York, April 26 (A.P.).—The Guaranty Trust Co. said today in its monthly survey that the flow of gold to this country might hasten the recovery of United States foreign trade by encouraging resumption of large-scale lending to foreign countries.

"From the point of view of American and European finance, a movement of gold from France to England and other countries would be more welcome, and in all probability such a movement ultimately will take place," the survey said, adding that there is no likelihood of the gold becoming a dangerous inflationary influence in the United States in any event.

The trust company stated current developments offer further support that the low point of the business cycle has been approximately reached, but fail to show any immediate prospect of marked recovery. However, in view of the comparative stability of industrial operations and trade volumes in the last few months, it says little doubt exists that the next significant movement will be upward. It foresaw a distinct possibility of recovery at the end of summer.

NORTHWEST CARDS AHEAD.

The Northwest Cardinals defeated the Gaithersburg nine, 6 to 4, yesterday in a game terminated by rain in the eighth inning. A large crowd of fans witnessed the contest. Payne, winning twirler, set the losers down with seven hits while fanning eight. The Gaithersburg crew did all its scoring in the seventh inning.

Man Cuts Wife's Hair After Burning Clothes

Special to The Washington Post.

Winchester, Va., April 26.—When Ellis Shifflett went home last night his wife was not there, so, according to the police, in order to "get even with her" he gathered up her clothing, threw it into the street, and set it afire.

Her arrival just in time to see some of her gowns in flames precipitated a fight, which was climaxed in the house where, police said, Shifflett seized a butcher knife and started to cut off his wife's hair. He had partly succeeded when she broke away from him, but suffered a severe cut on the hand in doing so.

Shifflett was taken to headquarters. His wife told officers she would not appear against him.

De Priest Puts Race Needs Above Party

Negro Representative Tells Colored Group He Will Not Align Vote.

Special to The Washington Post.

Staunton, Va., April 26.—In the next House of Representatives, when every vote will count and neither party has a vote to lose, Representative Oscar De Priest, Republican of the First Illinois District, only Negro in Congress and the first of his race to obtain a seat in 28 years, will align himself with no party that will not give the Negro a square deal.

In a speech here under auspices of a Negro men's club, De Priest urged h ishearers to exercise their judgment in distinguishing their friends, declaring that not all of their friends were in the Republican party, nor were all of their enemies lined up with the Democrats.

De Priest said that good American citizenship and proper exercise of the ballot will contribute largely to solving the Negro man's problems. The speaker said he was not ashamed of his humble origin—a son of slave parents—or of his race, which ,he said, in the last 65 years has made more progress than any other group of people.

BANK SYSTEM HELD LIABLE FOR BONDS

All Farm Loan Institutions Share Responsibility, Opinion Asserts.

New York, April 26 (A.P.).—In view of discussion in financial circles as to the exact terms of liability of Federal Land Banks on bonds of each other, managers of the investment group today made public a legal opinion by Hughes, Schurman & Dwight, attorneys.

The firm has been counsel for the bank group since its inception. The opinion pointed out that Congress provided in the act creating the Federal Land Bank system that each farm loan bond issued by any Federal Land Bank "shall contain in the face thereof a certificate signed by the Farm Loan Commissioner to the effect that all Federal Lank Banks are liable for payment of each bond."

After citing the various provisions of the Federal farm loan act of 1916, the opinion says:

"It imposes upon each Federal Land Bank, in addition to the primary liability upon its own bonds, an absolute liability with respect to the bonds of every other land bank.

"In the case of the interest coupons, the liability is for the full amount of such coupons and arises immediately on presentation for the full amount of such coupons following default by the issuing bank. It is a joint and several liability of all the banks to the bondholder for such coupons.

"In the case of the principal of the bonds, the liability is for the full amount of any deficit remaining unpaid after liquidation of the defaulting bank and distribution of its assets, and arises immediately upon such liquidation and distribution and, like the liability upon the coupons, it is a joint and several liability to the bondholder by all the banks for the entire deficit."

Pastor Hurls Attack On Modern Pharisees

Dr. Allen A. Stockdale Avers Character of Prayer Essential.

Censure of modern Pharisees was directed by the Rev. Dr. Allen A. Stockdale, pastor of the First Congregational Church, in his sermon yesterday morning.

His sermon follows:

"The basis of this Sunday morning's sermon is a parable of Jesus, and the purpose of the sermon is the one clearly found in the stated object of the parable. It has to do with some who relied on themselves as being righteous men and looked down upon all others. It would be well if that attitude had been found only in the days of our Lord, but unfortunately we are humiliated and embarrassed with it in the churches of our day.

"The church of the living God is no place to go to boast any more than was the temple in Jerusalem. If it was disgusting and wrong in the eyes of the Master of Galilee, it ought to affect sincere Christians in our age in the same way.

Pharisee Was Condemned.

"What was it about the Pharisee that Jesus saw and condemned? It was his empty, public show of piety and sanctity which did not exist. The Pharisee took up his position to pray to be seen of men, not to be heard of God. He took his pubic religious stand ostentatiously, striking what he thought was an imposing attitude. He proceeded to utter words of so-called prayer, satisfied with himself, rejoicing that he was not a plebeian, that he was not like the rest of men, not even like the Publican, whose deep, sincere, penitent prayer at that very time was touchnig the heart of God so deeply that he was paying no attention to the foolish, show-off Pharisee.

"He boasted of his gifts and found great satisfaction in the commanding appearance and wonderful worth of himself. But he was fooling himself; he was not misleading Jesus into a false estimate of his value. He was just a pathetic creature. Bragging in the Temple instead of worshiping God and opening his soul to the redeeming powers of his life. The Publican drew the commendation of Jesus. He was merely standing in a timid, sincere, prayerful attitude, not even posturing humility, asking God to be merciful to him a sinner. Penitence before God thinks of no other man. Praise before God thinks of every other man. Jesus teaches that character is an important condition of prayer.

"Prayer must be in the realm of the heart, not in the showy forms of art. Words alone do not constitute prayer. Prayers that are only words are like the bubbles with which children play, iridescent but hollow and often bursting before they can return to the earth from which they ascended.

Bragged in Church.

"Jesus could not endure the Pharisees because they bragged in church. They took striking devotional attitudes; they made long prayers; they put on airs of sanctity; their secret hearts were vain and proud. The Pharisees' prayers were wordy, inflated, full of self-eulogizing. They burned incense to the clayey images of themselves.

"The Publican's prayer was the cry of a broken heart, a longing of the deep hunger of the soul, the praise of an infinite God, and the gratitude for the redeeming power of a loving Father.

"The church that is atmosphered with human boasting will be a sadly and disgustingly disappointing place to the spiritually hungry souls of men. People who come to church for the mystical communion with God are not able to entirely escape the influence radiated by self-centered and vainly posing people. A church full of Pharisees must keep together seeing only God, but a church full of Phorisees must keep looking around at their fellows when they pray.

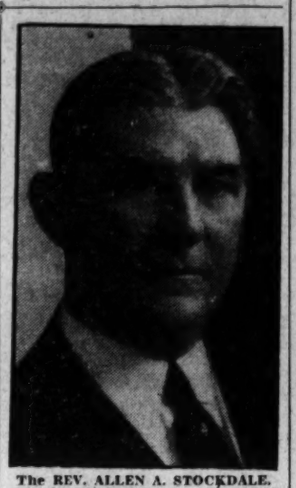
"The Pharisee is so transparent that he is harmless; so egotistical that he is hopeless, and so ostentatious that he is helpless.

Publican Given Praise.

"It is better to be what the publican thought he was not and was than to be what the Pharisee thought he was and was not.

"A great many city folks could be satisfied with themselves in prayer if they never had to measure up to the standards of Jesus. Such standards destroy the satisfactions of mere show. How restless and peevish men become when the house of pure selfhood is being demolished over their heads; or, to use another figure, when the painted shell is cracked and self-made unloveliness shows through.

"Denominationalism and material show make braggarts, but religion makes royal soldiers of a creative kingdom. The love of self makes Pharisees, but the love of God makes saints. The sight of Pharisees at prayer makes the soul turn sour on worship form. But the sound of a publican's voice before God makes the sin-sick souls of men cry to God for pardon."



The REV. ALLEN A. STOCKDALE.

Russia to Mobilize Seamen To Help in Transportation

Weakness of System Blamed as All Persons Employed on Boats in Last Ten Years Are Ordered to Report for Duty.

Moscow, April 26 (U.P.).—Immediate mobilization of all persons who worked on the sea or river transport services in the last ten years was ordered by the government today in a new move in the fight to speed up the country's transportation system.

The mobilization decree was issued jointly by the commissariat of labor and the seamen's union. It ordered all persons formerly employed as seamen of any kind, as well as all graduates of the water transport schools in the past five years, to report for sea duty within five days after assignment.

The move to place seamen on a "war time basis" followed recent similar action in the railways, when all persons who ever worked at one time or another on or in connection with railways were mobilized, and held ready to be sent to any spot in the land where they might be needed to bolster up this vital service.

The weakness of the country's transportation systems was given as the reason for today's decree. This weakness, it was declared, is proving the chief obstacle in the Soviet five year plan for the industrialization of the country.

The river transport systems in northern Russia particularly have been found inefficient, it was announced. These rivers are navigable only from May to August, freezing up early at the beginning of autumn. In the south they are navigable for several months longer.

The development of industry, however, now has reached a stage where it requires the river transport systems to carry 71,000,000 tons of freight above last year—an increase of 94 per cent, the authorities announced.

The bulk of river navigation must be done while the waters are high. A survey showed that only 68 per cent of the serviceable river craft were in commission and ready to operate during the coming summer months, when not only industrial products must be moved, but crops must be carried to markets.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

IT MAKES A DIFFERENCE.

("Despite the talk of hard times, attendance at big league baseball games is breaking all records."—News item.)

THE times, I hear, are deadly,
All industry's in bad;
I hear a constant medley
That things are pretty sad;
Like others, I regret it
And mourn my lack of cash—
But I can dig and get it
To see the ball teams clash.

I'm prone to sit and chatter
Of business gone to pot
And talk of what's the matter
With trade, and what is not;
"Depression's very low; it
Is very tough," I say—
But I don't seem to know it
The day the ball teams play.

I squawk about conditions
And money hard to find;
Of dividend omissions
And trade that lags behind;
I'm constantly deploring
Prosperity's sharp fall—
But all this I'm ignoring
When some one shouts "Play ball!"

I BEEF about the struggle
To get along, I do,
And dearly love to juggle
Statistics very blue;
I shout about privations
That mark depression's blight—
But I've my reservations
The day that ball nines fight.

I shout about a crisis,
And sob that money's shy;
No matter what the price is,
I'm careful what I buy;
Economy's my motto,
I cry "Save what you've got!"—
But all these thoughts go blotto
The day the swatters swat.

I urge my wife to reckon
Each nickel that she spends
And warn her ev'ry second
That on it much depends;
"The outlook's bleak and sorry,"
I say in accents clear—
But I've another story
The day the teams play here.

My neighbors all are weeping
About life's bitter knocks;
Hard times, they cry, are sweeping
Them swiftly on the rocks;
They say the outlook's all dark,
But bunk is what I see—
For when I'm in the ball park
I find them there with me!

EXPLAINING IT.

A SURVEY taken to shed light on what interests most readers in an American newspaper shows a surprisingly small "reader interest" in editorials, and indicates that the big circulation pullers are the department store and amusement ads and strip cartoons. "Sport news is played far beyond the point warwanted by interest," says the report.

* * * *

This may be explained by the fact that any such survey always runs up against the man who is too busy studying the batting averages, or writing a letter disagreeing with an editorial to stop and answer any questions about what he likes best in a newspaper.

WEEK-END.

MY stomach is slightly upset
My delicate nerves are a-jangle,
I hope I recver, though yet
My head is in—heavens—a tangle.

I am awfully short on my sleep,
I could turn in (a yawn) until Sunday!
Thank God for my own board and keep!
Thank God for the city on Monday!

Veterinarian Slain With Ax in Florida

Body of Former New York Man Is Found in Field Near Tampa.

Tampa, Fla., April 26 (A.P.).—The body of Jachin Shubert, veterinary surgeon, formerly of Paul River, N. Y., was found today in a field near here. The man apparently had been slain with an ax, police said.

Shubert had not been seen since he received a telephone call early last night and told his wife he had a hurry summons but would return within an hour.

The body was partly wrapped in tarpaulin, indicating, officers said, that Shubert had been slain elsewhere and his body taken to the spot where it was found. Shubert's automobile was near the body. Formerly head of the New York State laboratories, Shubert, a German, came to Tampa in 1925.

Bus Driver Drenches Rider Refusing to Pay Exact Fare

Because he preferred to argue with the driver rather than pay the amount of fare on a Washington-Alexandria bus last night, George Johnson, colored, 30 years old, of Alexandria, received a drenching from the liquid contained in an automatic fire extinguisher, and landed behind the bars in the First Police Precinct after he was captured in a chase of more than a block.

It began in Alexandria, when Johnson, in company with a woman companion, boarded a bus driven by Edward Hansbrough, 28 years old, of E street northeast near Fourth. According to Hansbrough, Johnson didn't drop enough fare in the coin box, and when it was brought to his attention, refused to pay more.

The argument which followed came to a climax at Fourteenth street and Pennsylvania avenue northwest as Johnson and his friend were about to leave the bus. Hansbrough insisted on the correct fare, and when Johnson's tactics became rough he picked a small fire extinguisher and doused the man with its contents.

Johnson fled down Fourteenth street, leaving his woman friend to shift for herself. Hansbrough took up the chase, as as he rounded the corner of the District Building was joined by Policeman W. J. Lynn, of the Traffic Bureau. Several passers-by also tsarted in pursuit, and the colored man was overtaken at Fourteenth and Ohio avenue northwest.

He was taken to the First Precinct, where a charge of drunkenness was placed against him. His companion, as far as could be learned, is still awaiting his return.
